Major McKinley Takes the Oath of Office,

And Becomes Chief Executive of Ohio.

Republicans Turn Out to Do Him Honor.

A Grand Parade at Noon To-Day.

Militia, Political and Civic Societies Flock to the State Capital to Make Merry Over a Victory Achieved at the Polls.

Columbus, Jan. 11.—Gov. McKinley took the oath of office at 11:30 this morning and Lieut.-Gov. Harris, Attorney-General D. K. Watson, State Treasurer W. T. Cope, State Auditor E. W. Poe, Commissioner of Public Works C. E. Groce, and Food Commissioner W. J. McKean were subsequently sworn in their respective offices in the capitol.

Not in many years has inauguration day brought more favorable weather. The day was crisp and not too cold and the streets are in excellent condition for marching.

The inaugural ceremonies proper were held in the rotunda of the state capitol. The general assembly met at 10:30 and almost immediately proceeded to the rotunda accompanied by the supreme judges and state officers-elect, except Major McKinley and the state officers.

Governor McKinley.

At 11 o'clock Gov. Campbell and Gov.-elect McKinley were escorted by a joint committee of the house and senate appointed to have charge of the inaugural ceremonies, from the Chittenden hotel to the state capitol.

Rev. Dr. H. W. Bennett, of the Wesley chapel, M. E. church, offered prayer, after which Chief Justice Marshall J. Williams, of the state supreme court, administered the oath of office. Gov. McKinley then delivered his inaugural address.

The whole inaugural party repaired to the reviewing stand in the state house yard immediately north of the capitol and facing Broad street.

A gun fired at the conclusion of the inaugural address was the signal for the parade of military and civil organizations, which had been forming, to move. The parade was probably the most imposing ever seen here on such an occasion. The first division was composed entirely of political clubs, and not less than 30 different organizations being represented, most of them composed of from 75 to 200 men.

The second division was made up of secret societies and unattached military. Most of these were from the city, though a number of other cities were represented.

The third division was composed of the state military, infantry and light artillery.

The parade moved south on Third street to Fulton, Thence to High, to Naghten, countermarching back to Broad, passing the reviewing stand and breaking line immediately thereafter.

After the parade had passed, the senators and Lieutenant-Governor Harris returned to the senate chamber, where the lieutenant-governor took the oath of office and the other state officers went to their respective offices, where they were sworn in by different members of the supreme court.

The following was the order of the parade:

REAR END COLLISION.

A Serious Wreck on the Pan Handle.

The Brakes Refused to Do Their Duty and One Train Smashed Into Another at Full Speed.

Steubenville, O., Jan. 11.—A bad wreck occurred at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the Pan Handle at the passenger station in this city.

The wreck was between two sections of No. 7, a west-bound passenger train. No. 9, the through vestibuled passenger, due here at 9:18 a. m., was two hours late, and was run as first section of No. 7.

It arrived in this city about 12:45 and remained twenty minutes, during which time the entire crew was cooling hot boxes, of which there was nearly half a dozen.

While the first section was here the second section, drawn by engine No. 75, Engineer Thomas Caniff and Conductor Thomas Brown, came flying around the curve in sight of the station, and the engine crashed into the vestibule sleeper Venetia, in which there were five passengers who were in the front end of the car and were not injured other than being badly frightened and jolted.

The engine tore into the sleeper half its entire length. Conductor Brown, of the second section, is the only person hurt, his back being badly injured by being thrown across a seat.

The baggage car and a passenger car on the second section were badly broken up, and engine No. 75 is badly wrecked. The wreck was the result of total disregard of signals, as a red block was turned east showing that a train was on the track.

Engineer Caniff saw the signal, he says, and whistled down brakes and applied the air brakes, which refused to work, letting the engine and heavy train crash into the passenger train. The passengers and baggage were transferred to new cars and the first section proceeded west.

IS SIDNEY BELL INNOCENT

Another Turn in a Sensational Case.

An Ohio Boy in Close Quarters in the West.

Ten Thousand Dollars Have Been Spent in His Behalf, but the Police Are Bent on Hanging Him.

San Francisco, Jan. 11.—Campbell's confession in the Jacobson murder case created a great stir among the police here, as the department has set its heart on hanging Sidney Bell, just as it has on stretching the neck of Actor Curtis.

The police ridicule Campbell's latest statement, and say that they have proof that Schwartz, whom he charges with shooting Jacobson, was on the overland train coming to San Francisco when the murder was committed. The police claim to have peculiar letters, written by Rev. Chalmers Easton to Campbell's wife, urging her to secure testimony that would clear Bell.

Easton, who is a prominent clergyman here, is fully convinced of Bell's innocence and has worked hard for him. Mrs. Campbell, wife of the man now in Chicago, is a notorious character here. She has been a beer waiter in underground saloons and is regarded as a woman who would stop at nothing to accomplish her purpose.

There has been much speculation as to the source of the money with which the expenses of the case are being defrayed. It is now said that the brother of Bell's father is furnishing funds and from the great amount of work done it is computed that fully $10,000 has already been expended. This wealthy uncle of the convicted murderer lives at Columbus, O., and is a prominent stockholder in the Columbus Manufacturing company.

Bell's family is said to be one of respectability and it is in the effort to save a good name from disgrace which would attach to it by the execution of a kinsman that money is being spent. Soon after Sidney Bell came to the coast the chief of police received a letter from his parents who made anxious inquiries about him. His extraordinary criminal character had developed long before he left home, but letters sent by Bell's people to Chief Crowley were not remembered by him until after the trial of the accused and his conviction.

TO FIGHT JUDGE WOOD.

Indiana Senators to Lead the Battle.

They Want His Fitness for Office Discussed in Open Senate Before the Whole Country.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Judge Wood, of Indiana, who was recently nominated for one of the new circuit judgeships, will, from all appearances, have a thorny path to travel before he receives his commission. At the first executive session of the senate this week an attempt will be made to have the confirmation of Judge Wood considered in open session.

This step will be taken by Senators Voorhees and Turpie, who are opposed to this nomination.

Those making the fight against confirmation, headed by the Indiana senators, it is said, want the whole country to hear the merits and demerits of this appointment and with that end in view they seek as large an audience as possible.

The democrats expect assistance from the republican side of the chamber in this matter, for, it is claimed, the appointment being judicial and political, it will receive the most careful consideration at the hands of the senate and the fitness of the nominee to serve on the federal bench will be passed upon without partisan prejudice. Whether the Indiana senators gain by this point or not in the preliminary bout, the opposition will be kept up to the last moment and the record of Judge Wood will be assailed in executive session.

EGAN'S SIDE PARTNERS.

He Escorts Them Safely Out of Chili.

Much Comment is Caused by the Latest Action Taken by the American Minister.

New York, Jan. 11.—The Herald's Valparaiso correspondent says: A great deal of talk is heard about the action of United States minister Egan escorting three Balmaceda refugees, Juan and William Mackenna and Jose Carrera, from the American legation at Santiago to Valparaiso on Saturday, and placing them aboard the United States cruiser Yorktown. But the knowledge that he did so with the tacit approval of the new administration has disarmed severe criticism.

The press gives considerable space to the subject, but discuss it in a calm spirit, and while not condemning Minister Egan for his action, asserts that the United States government must assume the responsibility if its minister loses the respect of the public, for his action as an escort to such characters degrades him to the rank of a policeman.

Though recalling the fact that Minister Egan had done many like acts for prominent congressionalists, the press says there is no comparison between caring for men who were on the side of liberty and order and protecting these refugees, who are known to be men utterly devoid of good deeds.

Juan Mackenna, one of the men escorted by the United States minister, is accused of endeavoring to rob an American named Chase of a silver mine near Iqueque and afterward hiring men to attack him.

MANIA FOR ARSON.

A Girl Arrested on Serious Charges.

Her Continued and Strange Career of Crime Points Strongly to an Unsound Mind.

Columbus, Wis., Jan. 11.—Liddia A. Waler, the 17-year-old daughter of Samuel Walter, living in the town of Calamus, four miles from this city, was Friday discovered in the act of setting fire to a barn of Julius Venie.

She sought to escape by running, but finding her pursuer gaining upon her, she drew a large butcher knife and defied arrest. Two blows from a club were necessary to compel her to surrender, and when finally safe in jail at Juneau, she confessed to having committed 15 deeds of outlawry in Calamus during the past three months, including the mutilation of much valuable live stock, the burning of a school house and the destruction of other property. The girl is of unsound mind.

COUNTERFEITERS.

Bogus Gold Money that Had the True Ring and Weight.

Salt Lake, U. T., Jan. 11.—A gang of counterfeiters who flooded the city with spurious five, ten and twenty dollar gold pieces during the holidays were arraigned before United States Commissioner Greenman Saturday.

All entered a plea of not guilty. Mary Gignon, wife of King Pin, counterfeiter, took the stand and turned state's evidence. She implicated her husband, Jesse Gignon, Wm. Gibson, Wm. Cronk, P. D. Sprague and Mark King.

The men were bound over to wait the grand jury in the sum of $5,000 each, in default of which they were taken to the penitentiary.

The gang had its headquarters one block from the police station, and made $1,500 worth of counterfeit coins. They were making preparations to visit Denver, Kansas City, Omaha and other eastern cities when arrested here by the authorities.

The design and weight of the money was perfect. The true ring of the gold coin made it one of the most successful attempts at counterfeiting ever perpetrated.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The joint resolution providing for an amendment to the constitution which prohibits all persons of foreign birth, not citizens of the United States from voting for any office either state or national, will be vigorously pressed by Senator Chandler, its projector.

The purpose of the amendment is to take the authority to issue naturalization papers out of the hands of state courts and place it under the immediate control of the federal government.

TONGUE RIVER INDIANS.

They Have Been Stealing Cattle Again.

Trouble is Feared If the Civil Authorities go on the Reservation to Make Arrests.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—A telegram from Helena, Mont., yesterday said there was danger of bloodshed on the Tongue river agency. The army officers at headquarters here put little faith in the suggestion of bloodshed, but that there is a bad feeling on the Tongue river reservation is admitted.

For a long time the cattlemen have accused the Indians of killing their cattle and during the last few weeks, being unable to get at the Indians in any other way, they have been urging the sheriff to take a posse and enter the reservation for the purpose of making the arrests.

Capt. Boutelle, of troop K, first cavalry, who is stationed at the agency, heard of this and telegraphed the facts to Gen. Merritt.

Thereupon Gen. Merritt telegraphed Gov. Toole, advising him to prevent the civil authorities from entering the reservation, since such action could but result in trouble.

The Indians are accustomed to the presence of the soldiers and would quietly submit to an arrest by them, but they would regard the presence of others as an interference and an intrusion on their special domain, and had the posse of whites under the sheriff attempted the arrests trouble of some sort would have followed.

That it would have been very serious or resulted in bloodshed is extremely doubtful, for the cavalry would easily have held matters in check. This is but the occasion of the periodical Indian scare from the Tongue river agency and is causing the army officials no uneasiness.

MADE AN ASSIGNMENT.

New York, Jan. 11.—P. Jandorf & Brother, dealers in diamonds, watches and jewelry at No. 51 Maiden Lane, assigned to-day to Herman A. Rosenfeld, giving preferences for $12,500.

MINISTERS AT WAR.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—Serious differences have arisen between Herr Meguel, imperial minister of finance, and Herr Von Heyden, minister of agriculture.

STREET CARS TIED UP.

Indianapolis People Are Walking To-Day.

The Company Ordered Its Employes to Pay Fare When Not on Company Business and They Struck.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 11.—The whole street car system of Indianapolis is completely tied up and not a car, neither mule power nor electric motor, is now running.

Ten days ago President Frenzel, of the Citizens' Street Railway company, took up all the badges of the employes and notified them that except on strictly company business and under certain other conditions the men must either pay fare or walk.

When permitted to ride the men were required to have checks issued to them by the company.

Sunday morning at 2 o'clock the brotherhood had a secret meeting which remained in session for two hours, during which a strike was declared and at 4 a. m. it was announced that no cars would run.

A notice was posted in the postoffice saying that every man who failed to report for duty by noon could consider himself discharged. This was entirely without effect.

NEWS FROM TANGIERS.

The Arabs Are Restless and May Yet Cause Trouble.

London, Jan. 11.—Dispatches from Tangiers indicate that, notwithstanding the action of the sultan in ordering the deposition of the Basham, the Arabs continue restless and appear indisposed to allow affairs to at once resume their normal aspect. The military forces now present and available are, however, ample to protect the resident Europeans.

The Spanish minister at Tangiers telegraphs his government that while the attitude of the Arabs is still menacing, the safety of the lives and property of Europeans are guaranteed by the presence of foreign war vessels, which will, if necessary, co-operate in protective action.

THE TOLEDO DELEGATION.

Several car loads of enthusiastic republicans left Toledo for Columbus this morning to attend the inauguration of Gov. McKinley. The local party was ably represented, and there was a fair sprinkling of ladies, including the Young Lady Cadets. A band accompanied the delegation to keep the spirits up to the proper pitch, and altogether it was a jolly party. The Toledo Cadets went down yesterday. The Toledoans will return home to-night.

IN REBELLION AGAIN.

Aden, Jan. 11.—The rebellion in Yemen has burst forth again, and the rebels are marching upon Sanaa, the capital of Yemen, from which place the Turks are advancing to oppose them. The wires are cut, and but little information can be obtained from the interior. There is, however, no longer any doubt that the rebellion is the outgrowth of religious fanaticism.

JEWS FOR ARGENTINA.

Paris, Jan. 11.—In an interview to-day Baron Hirsch informed a representative of the United Press that the government of the Argentine Republic supports his scheme for a colonization of Hebrews in that country.

PREMIER MERCIER

Charged With All Manner of Crimes.

A Commission of Investigation Appointed.

Millions Alleged to Have Been Stolen.

Canada's Greatest Sensation to Come.

Lieutenant-Governor Angers Has Determined to Ferret Out the Crimes, Let the Consequences Fall Where They May.

Quebec, Jan. 11.—An even greater sensation than the recent dismissal from power by Lieut.-Gov. Angers, of ex-Premier Mercier and his colleagues, has been created here by the announcement last night that this morning will witness the appointment by the governor and his new advisors of a royal commission of inquiry to examine into a series of charges of malfeasance in office against their predecessors.

The commission will consist of Judge Mathien, Donald McMaster, an eminent barrister, and D. A. Mose Masson, a leading merchant of Montreal. The direct charges of malfeasance of office to be referred to such commission are so terrible as to completely stagger people of even this paradise of boodlers. They include the following:

The issue in one year by the Mercier government of illegal letters of credit only discovered since the new government came into power, amounting to $156,000 in favor of political partisans and organizers.

The giving out of corruption tracts without the sanction of the executive to the value of $700,000.

The personal collection from the treasury by ex-Premier Mercier of large subsidies amounting to hundreds of thousands, voted to various railways.

The corruption and direct payment by public contract of many thousands of dollars to ex-Premier Mercier and his friends, and general boodling by Mercier and his friends with all public contracts and patronage.

Attorney-General Cosgrain will to-morrow follow up this action by instructing the crown counsel to take action against Mercier's friend, Ernest Pacaud, to recover the $100,000 boodle he admitted receiving from the "Baie Des Chaleurs" railroad affair, but it now transpires that Pacaud has deposited the unexpended balance of the sum in the National Park bank, New York, to avoid seizure.

STILL FAST IN THE SNOW.

Storms Continue in the North of Ireland.

The Passengers on the Blockaded Trains Are Suffering From Hunger and Cold.

London, Jan. 11.—Reports received this morning from Scotland and the north of England, state that the fall of snow continues incessant and heavy, while the weather remains intensely cold.

The passenger train which on Friday last became embedded in a snow drift a considerable distance from a railroad station in Caithness, the most northerly county in Scotland, remains immovable.

A relief train which was dispatched to the assistance of the train found it impossible to make headway against the dense masses of snow which the wind constantly piled up along the roadway, and it, too, stands on the track powerless alike to aid the passenger train or extricate itself.

A second relief train and crew, drawn by powerful engines, is now pushing its way toward the scene of the blockade.

Meantime the snow-bound passengers and train crews are in a miserable plight, and it is feared the former are suffering intensely from hunger and cold, owing to the failure of the first relief expedition to reach them with supplies.

PUMAS IN OHIO.

Desperate Battle Reported Near Leipsic.

Hunters Surround the Animals, but Fail to Capture Them—Two Men Hurt and Three Dogs Killed.

Leipsic, O., Jan. 11.—(Special)—Two pumas have for weeks been preying on the live stock in this vicinity and Saturday 700 men and scores of dogs started out to hunt them down. The line closed in and one of the brutes was discovered, but before the hunters arrived in sufficient numbers three dogs had been killed and Jerry Ettinger badly injured, as was also Henry Wolf, a Tiffin hunter.

The two brutes finally escaped into the swamp but the hunt is being kept up with every prospect of their being killed.

ADMIRAL ROGERS' FUNERAL.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Funeral services over the remains of Rear Admiral Rogers were held at St. John's Episcopal church this morning. Long before the hour for the services to begin a body of sailors who were to bear the coffin waited at the church in the drizzling rain to carry the remains of their late commander and act as an escort.

In accordance with the expressed wishes of the dead admiral, the funeral was private.

THROCKMORTON'S CASE.

New York, Jan. 11.—The court-martial which has been trying Major Charles Throckmorton, Second Artillery, United States army, for issuing fraudulent vouchers and checks, met in secret session to-day. A verdict was found and forwarded to Washington. The penalty for several of the specifications made against the major is dismissal from the army.

FAILURE.

Resolutions Introduced in the House

To Find Some Way to Oust Senator Brice.

Bills Introduced in Both Branches.

The Contested Election Case of Snook vs. Sutphen Has Been Fixed for Hearing in the Senate for January 26.

Both branches of the legislature met this morning. In the house of representatives Mr. Strock introduced his old bill of last winter making it a misdemeanor for the editor or proprietor of any newspaper to advertise proprietary medicines for the cure of certain diseases. The penalty is a fine of not more than $1,000 or less than $100, or imprisonment not less than 60 days nor more than one year, or both.

Representative Britain offered the following resolution, which went over under the rules:

"Whereas, It has been publicly charged that Calvin. S Brice, at present holding the office of United States senator from Ohio, was not at the time of his election an inhabitant of the state from which he was elected, and that he has no constitutional right to the office he now holds; therefor be it Resolved, by the general assembly of the state of Ohio, that proper action should be taken to investigate the above charges and determine whether or not Calvin S. Brice has a legal right to represent Ohio in the senate of the United States."

Senator Nichols, republican, offered for adoption a resolution providing for appointment of committee to rearrange the judicial districts of the state, and that this committee present a bill for passage at an early day

Senator Von Seggern introduced three bills in the senate this morning of general importance. The first provides that when judgment for wages is rendered by a justice of the peace, and is taken up on error and affirmed, the costs of the suit shall include $15 for the attorney for defendant in error.

The second provides that when the plaintiff recovers judgment for wages as claimed there shall be included in the costs $5 for his attorney. If defendant's appeals and judgment is affirmed $15 shall be included in the costs for the attorney.

Third provides that when a loan of not more than $250 is made, and secured by mortgage or lien, or otherwise, the rate of interest charged shall not in any manner exceed 8 per cent. per annum on the amount loaned, and the total of all other charges whatsoever, including insurance, drawing mortgage or other documents, examination of title and appraisement of property, shall not exceed the sum of $5, or the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the amount loaned.

Senator Green introduced a bill giving authority to the trial judge to state the amount of compensation to be given attorneys for defending indigent prisoners, instead of allowing the county commissioners to do so, as is the case at present.

Senator Phillips introduced a bill to amend the struck jury by giving clerks of court authority to fill a panel in the case of death of any number of original panel. If this should become law it will save considerable money to all counties in the state.

Senator Rorick was granted indefinite leave of absence on account of sickness.

The senate, by resolution, fixed January 26 as the day to hear and determine the contested election case of Judge Sutphen and Wilson H. Snook in the Defiance district. This gives the democrat only 10 days to prepare his case.

POLITICAL EQUALITY CLUB.

Interesting Meeting of This Young and Growing Society.

The Political Equality club met with Mrs. Judge Bentley, 435 Superior street, Saturday afternoon. The meeting opened with the reading of a chapter from Fiske's "Civil Governments," by the president, Mrs. C. Q. Murphy. This was followed by the parliamentary drill, conducted by Mrs. S. J. Foley. Miss Jeannette Olmstead, Miss Helen Nolen and Miss Katharine Calkins. The drill, which was on dependent motions, was very interesting, and will be repeated at the next meeting.

Mrs. Judge Bentley, Mrs. Susan I. Moore and Mrs. Edward Quigley will prepare a program and conduct the drill.

Reports on congressional and foreign affairs and the work of the president and cabinet were received. Mrs. Murphy made a brief address stating, for the benefit of the strangers present, the aims and objects of the club, and the meeting adjourned to meet in two weeks, Jan. 23, with Mrs. Gen. W. Beeley, 435 Tenth street, at 4 p. m.

The following are appointed to report on the subjects named at the next meeting: On the president and cabinet, Mrs. Susan I Moore; on congress, Miss Jeannette Olmstead; on the state legislature, Mrs. A. P. Stevens; on foreign affairs, Miss Helen Nolen. President Murphy, who attends the national suffrage convention as a delegate, will have returned before the next meeting, and her interesting report will be a special feature of the meeting.

The Political Equality club grows apace. Four new members were received at the last meeting, and the total membership is now 30.

IT IS POSSIBLE

That the Secretary and Treasurer's Office of the Clover Leaf Railroad Will Be Removed to Toledo.

Mr. M. L. Crowell, who was recently appointed secretary and assistant treasurer of the Clover Leaf Railroad company, is in the city to-day. Mr. Crowell at present is located in New York city, but informed a Bee that he expected to return to Toledo within the next month to remain permanently.

As to the removal of the secretary and treasurer's office to Toledo, he stated that he was not certain. However, it is very probable that this step will be taken by the company to concentrate the official force.

DIED ON HIS KNEES.

Edward Knapp Found Dead in His Room in the Law Building.

Edward Knapp, aged about 68, living in room 40, Law building, was found dead in his room about 9 o'clock this morning by Janitor Spitler and Mr. John McIntyre.

The last seen of Mr. Knapp alive was yesterday morning, when he went out for his breakfast and returned to his room. He had made an engagement to eat Sunday dinner with Mr. McIntyre, who lives in the same building, but did not put in an appearance. This morning Mr. McIntyre became uneasy, as Mr. Knapp had not been seen about the building, and obtaining a step-ladder looked through the transom into Mr. Knapp's room. There he saw the old gentleman, kneeling beside the bed, with his overcoat and rubbers on, and an umbrella in his hand.

He notified the janitor, Mr. Spitler, and together they entered the room, to find Mr. Knapp dead.

The coroner was notified, and upon examination of the body decided that he had been dead about 24 hours, and that death resulted from heart disease.

Mr. Knapp was subject to epileptic fits, and was evidently stricken just as he returned to his room yesterday morning.

The deceased was living alone, as his wife died about one year ago.

George Knapp, an employe of the Lozier & Yost bicycle factory, is a son of the dead man, and upon being notified of his father's death, at once took charge of the remains. The funeral will take place to-morrow from the son's residence, 223 Prescott street, and the interment will be at Forest cemetery.

A TIDE AT TOLEDO.

Scientists Make Observations—Force of the Moon's Attraction.

The earth turning on its axis brings each point of its circumference daily under the moon, and our satelite's attractions on the waters piles them up and causes the tides of the oceans.

The moon must also exert some influence on the waters of the lakes, and consequently there must be a natural tide at Toledo, quite small, of course, and difficult to detect. The range between high and low water in a land locked sea should bear about the same ratio to the rise and fall of the tide in mid ocean, that the lengths of the lakes do to the diameter of the earth.

Of course at such a point as Toledo, and on such a shallow body of water as Lake Erie, the variations in the direction of the wind, the rains and the barometric pressure cause continual changes in the lake's level that are much larger than the true tides. Consequently it has been only by a long series of observations that scientists have been able to separate the real tide from the effects of other causes. They have done this, however, and proved a daily tide at Toledo of three-quarters of an inch; rather insignificant, but still a tide.

IN CONGRESS TO-DAY.

Indian Bureau Wants a Hundred Thousand

To Bribe the Savages to Give Up the Ghost Dance.

Senator Perkins Makes the Most of His Chances and Spoils the Time-Worn Rules of the Senate by Securing the Floor.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The vice president laid before the senate at its opening to-day a communication from the interior department asking an immense deficiency appropriation of $150,000 for the support of the Sioux Indians, in transmitting which the authorities of the department expressed the opinion that unless the appropriation were made before February 1, the result might possibly be a renewal of the Sioux "ghost dance" and the disturbances of last year.

The communication was referred to the committee on appropriations. Mr. Perkins, the newly appointed senator from Kansas, elicited the attention of the senate by saying that he had a communication to present which had been addressed to his distinguished predecessor, Mr. Plumb, from the United States minister in Mexico, Mr. Thomas Ryan. He asked that it be read.

Mr. Harris, who had previously objected to the reading and printing in the Record of memorials on the ground that if one senator was permitted to inaugurate this practice every other senator would be hauled over the coals by their constituents for not securing similar prominence to their petitions, withdrew his objections in this case and the communication was read.

Minister Ryan, under date of City of Mexico, December 9, 1891, wrote that it had been suggested that it would be a generous act on the part of the United States to return to Mexico the trophies of war captured from her armies in the Mexican war. Whatever sentiment might prevail among citizens of the United States with regard to the justice or injustice of the invasion of Mexico more than 40 years ago, Minister Ryan thought public sentiment would acquiesce in the return of these war trophies as a graceful act to a sister republic, next to the United States the greatest power on the American continent.

In the House.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Speaker Crisp, although improving, was unable to face the wintry winds that surged up and down the avenue this morning and Speaker pro tem McMillin called the house to order at noon.

The attendance was quite large, most of the members having returned from their holiday vacation.

The absentees were mostly those who have been excused for reasons of illness or business. The congress is not yet so old that it has lost the interest of the people and the galleries were well filled when the gavel fell and Chaplain Milburn invoked the divine blessing.

Counselman Won.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The United States supreme court to-day decided in the case of Charles Counselman, of Chicago, vs. Frank Hitchcock, Marshall of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, that the inter-state commerce commission had no right to compel a witness to testify against himself and reversed the decision of the United States Circuit Court of the Northern District of Illinois, holding that Counselman, in refusing to answer questions put to him by the inter-state commerce commission was guilty of contempt. Counselman was brought before the commission and asked whether his railroad had discriminated in granting rates to shippers. He refused to answer on the ground that he would incriminate himself.

The commission certified the case to the Chicago grand jury and to it Counselman also refused to answer on the same ground.

The grand jury reported this fact to the court under which it was acting and the court adjudged Counselman guilty of contempt and imposed a fine of $500.

He was taken into custody and a writ of habeas corpus, the district court held that the order committing him to custody was incorrect. The United States circuit court of this district reversed this decision and Counselman appealed to the supreme court. The decision was handed down by Justice Blatchford. It reverses the decision of the circuit court and orders that the proceedings be remanded to the circuit court with instructions to discharge Counselman from custody.

The journal of the last session was read and approved. Mr. Dockery (Mo.) asked leave to make a statement to correct errors in his speech upon the condition of the treasury, made some days ago, as it appears in the record.

Mr. Henderson (Ia.) objected on the ground that the errors were those of the gentleman and not those of the record and therefore not privileged. He offered, however, to consent that Mr. Dockery might use an hour correcting his errors if he (Henderson) were given an hour to answer him.

Mr. Oates of Alabama objected to the use of an hour for any such purpose and the matter went over.

Mr. Breckinridge of Kentucky introduced a resolution for the repeal of the retaliatory duties clause of the McKinley bill and authorizing the president to open our ports free to those countries which admit our products free of duty.

Mr. Burrows objected to its presentation and it was withdrawn.

The rule of the introduction of bills was extended to cover to-day and a large number of measures were introduced.

NEW YORK'S BACHELOR FAD.

According to the society directory there are 3,307 bachelors among the people who make up New York's fashionable society—that is, twice as many unmarried men as women, and more unmarried men than married. There are 8,098 names in this directory of polite society. Of that number 3,307 are those of unmarried men, 1,593 are those of unmarried women and 3,198 are the names of married men and their wives. This indicates the extent of the bachelor habit. There are twice as many bachelors as maidens. It has long been a matter of remark that men do not rush as impetuously into marriage as they used to. It may be that the modern young man, with a superior reflection, has acquired a habit of measuring consequences from the causes he did not formerly possess. It may be that convenience and convention have crowded sentiment out of his heart. At any rate, marriage is not as popular in New York society as it used to be, and ambitious young men feel that they cannot afford it. Moreover, fashionable women have fewer children than their mothers and grandmothers did—a fact which is not a happy omen for the race. The rich Parisians are the only people like the New Yorkers in this respect.—New York Press.

SAGE'S NEARNESS.

The Philadelphia Press says in regard to Russell Sage's "nearness:" "Mr. Russell Sage's contributions to charities are not always as large as solicitors are led to hope from the size of that gentlemen's fortune," remarked a man last evening, who had once called upon the milionaire with a subscription paper, and could therefore speak from experience. "I went to Mr. Sage's office one day," said he, and asked for his name to a paper for the furtherance of a charity that has since become quite conspicuous in the city. To fortify, ourselves we had gone first to Mrs. Sage, and she had set down her name and given me $20. Mr. Sage took the paper, scanned it closely, and, when he finally came to his wife's name paused and said he would give an answer next day. Meantime he would keep the paper overnight. I thought I had him for $500 any way, and perhaps for $1,000. I was new in the business, you know. Next day I skipped down, light hearted and sent in my card. In a few moments I was in the financier's presence. He looked at me benevolently, took the subscription paper off his desk, looked over it again and handed it to me. I have a faint recollection that I was a little profuse in my thanks in behalf of the charity, chatted a moment on the great necessity for establishing the good work, flattered him somewhat and departed. When I reached the street I took the paper out, glanced at the last name, expecting to see the old gentlemen's name before a three-figure amount at least, but it wasn't there. Running my eye up the sheet I saw written in Mr. Sage's well-known hand the word 'Mr.' before that of his wife, by which he had assumed financial liability for half of her donation, and made the donors' names read Mr. and Mrs. Sage, $20. I never go down his way with subscription papers nowadays."

FOUND DEAD IN A CAR.

Thomas Palmer, a Defiance Cooper, the Man.

Evidently a Case of Foul Play—Coroner Beckwith and Railroad Officials Unable to Account for the Death.

A Wabash freight car came into this city Saturday with a ghastly load, and when the discovery was made yesterday it disclosed another murder and a very mysterious one.

The car was a refrigerator car, and while in the Lake Shore transfer house, this city, yesterday morning, two employes of the road discovered in it the dead body of a man, covered with blood, coming from two wounds, one over each eye. The coroner was called and an examination of the body discovered some papers with the name of Thomas Palmer, Defiance, on them, and also two half pint flasks of whisky that were untouched.

The wounds in the head consist of two cuts, one over each eye, and they are of such a character as would be made by stabs from a knife. The condition of other parts of the face and the location of the wounds make it plain that the man was the victim of foul play, as such wounds could not have been made by a fall.

Telegrams were sent to Defiance, and this morning Wm. Palmer and George Stock, of Jewell, a small village near Defiance, arrived in the city.

They at once proceeded to Undertaker Coyle's establishment, where the body was, and there Palmer identified the body as that of his brother, Thomas Palmer, a cooper by trade, and living at Defiance. He took charge of the body, and will take it to Jewell with him this evening.

To a Bee Mr. Palmer stated that his brother was about 45 years old, a cooper by trade, and had been working near Defiance lately. His wife is dead but he has three children, two boys and a girl, living at Defiance, also two sisters. The dead man was last seen in a saloon at Defiance at about 9:30 Friday night, and he was intoxicated at the time. Palmer states that his brother was a quiet and inoffensive man, even when intoxicated. He seldom has any money about him, and his brother is at a loss to know what reason there could be for anybody to murder him.

The car in which Palmer was found left Defiance about noon Saturday and arrived in this city that evening. It was switched into the transfer house Sunday morning, and then the dead man was discovered by Thomas White and Timothy Flanagan.

At first it was thought that the man might have gotten into the car and there died from the exposure, but the position of the wounds exploded this theory.

Coroner Beckwith has heard most of the testimony in the case, and will render a verdict that the deceased came to his death by reason of stab wounds administered by some person or persons unknown.

The case is a very mysterious one, and it is possible that the murderers may never be found.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

Reputation is what a man has the name of being, but character is what God sees he is.

There is no meaner kind of selfishness than that which wears the cloak of hypocrisy.

The kind of religion that doesn't cost anything is not the kind the good Samaritan had.

The spirit that put the apple in Adam's hand was the same that put Christ on the cross.

The hand that would take God's fruit would be just as ready to take God's life, if it could.

If the devil gets a man's ear he is pretty sure to get both of his hands before he leaves him.

If the bees were all to conclude to stay at home, how soon there would be a famine in honey.

The mere fact that charity is to begin at home, is all the proof we need that it shouldn't stay there.

If you want your children to love the Sabbath, don't make a practice of washing them Sunday morning.

The man who is doing all for God that he can do, will soon be able to do more for him than he does do.

How much easier it is to keep sweet when it is our pigs that get into the garden, and not our neighbor's.

There is no use in asking God to bless other people unless you are willing to bear some of the expense yourself.—Ram's Horn.

Avoiding Disgrace.

Upson Downes (7 a. m.): "Great Caesar! A sneak-thief has been in our room and taken all our clothes. What'll we do?" Rowne de Bout: "Not all. He has missed our dress-suits. We can put them on." "What? Dress-suits in the morning? We'll be eternally disgraced." "Can't be helped. We must put them on and go out to breakfast. Perhaps our friends will think we've been out all night." "By Jove! Good idea! We'll pretend to be drunk."—Puck.

An Ancient Disease.

Dr. Perkins is a noted linguist. He knows all the dead languages, and is always telling the derivation of words. Not long since Hostetter McGinnis, feeling unwell, applied to Dr. Perkins for advice, detailing his symptoms.

"You are suffering from dyspepsia," said the doctor.

"Dyspepsia! What does that come from?"

"Dyspepsia? Why, that comes from the Greek, of course; I thought everybody knew that."—Texas Siftings.

What a Chance.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she should certainly have no time for the use of text-books if she attempted to answer all the startling questions asked her in the class. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion; and Charley Beale volunteered the opinion that he "didn't see any need of it, anyway."

"It seems to me," said Charley, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell, and made Newton think out the reason—why, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was till somebody gathered it."

"You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher.

"Yes'm."

"Suppose you hit the ball very high, what happens?"

"It falls."

"But if there were no attraction toward the earth it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"

Charley did not answer immediately. His eyes were bright with the light of a new idea.

"My!" he broke forth involuntarily. "What a chance for a home run!"

Good Cause for Complaint.

Major Murgatroyd—No, sir, I do not like the newspaper of to-day! Let me give you an illustration. Last week I met a reporter of the Moon—casually, you understand—and told him—casually—a good story about Judge Bungstarter's visit to my house, and the time we had. Made him promise he wouldn't publish it. See?

Pompano—Yes. He promised?

Major M.—He did. Then what do you suppose?

Pompano—(wearily)—D'no.

Major M.—(savagely)—He didn't publish it. Not a line, sir; not a line!—Smith, Gray & Co.'s Monthly.

Sherman and the Scriptures.

When Sherman reached Atlanta he had much trouble in keeping back camp-followers, sutlers, women, curiosity-seekers, and so on. He gave stringent orders that no one was to be allowed to go to the front without a specific order. Just about that time a surgeon came back from a furlough. He had passes through to Atlanta, but at Chattanooga they refused to allow his wife to accompany him further. They had only been married a few weeks, and he had resolved that she should go with him, orders or no orders. Accordingly he dressed her as a soldier and managed to smuggle her on a train. At Resaca she was stopped, her sex being discovered. The officer of the post absolutely refused to let her go on. The surgeon pleaded. Finally, after pleading to the officer's sense of mercy, he fell back on scripture. "My pass allows one to go to the front," he said, "and scripture says a man and his wife are one." "Thunder!" retorted the officer; "Sherman outranks scripture all to blazes in these times."

She Sympathized With Him.

Master—"Mary, I wish you would be more careful. I am very sorry to hear my wife has to scold you so often."

Mary—"Oh, don't you mind me, sir. I don't take no notice of it."—Comic.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Dr. Graves Taken Into Court in Denver.

New Trial Refused and the Extreme Penalty of the Law Applied in His Case.

Denver, Col., Jan. 11.—At 10 o'clock to-day Dr. Graves appeared in court pursuant to the order of Judge Rising, and was denied an arrest of judgment, and was sentenced to be hanged some time during the two weeks beginning January 31, 1892.

The usual proceeding after sentence was pronounced is to remove the prisoner to the penitentiary at the earliest convenient moment. Dr. Graves would probably wish to see his wife before being taken away. Thanks to the excellent care that is being given her her condition continues to show steady improvement.

The doctor passed yesterday in the same calm manner as the previous days of the week. His indifference is remarked by all the guards at the jail. The other principals in the case took almost complete rest preparatory to what is likely to be the final battle in the district court.

Mr. Conrad, the prosecuting witness, is still in the city, but expects to leave this evening for Providence.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Several engagements will be made public in the near future.

Bond sale at the city auditor's office this evening at 7 o'clock.

The county commissioners this morning sold $25,000 worth of stone road bonds to Spitzer & Co., of this city at par accrued interest and $175 commission.

The case in appeal of the Consolidated against the Robisons has been set for hearing on next Monday in circuit court. The case involves the trolley wire matter.

Billy Cook returned to his home Saturday night, as announced in the Bee, and is to-day being given a hearty welcome. He is ready to go to work, and as he put it to a Bee, "wants to show the good people of Toledo that he is not unmindful of the friendship so freely bestowed."

The petition in the case of Margaret Harrigan against the Michigan Central railroad company was filed in United States court to-day. It is an action to recover $10,000 damages for death. The case originated in common pleas court, but was transfered on motion of the defendant.

CHILLY TYPE WRITTEN LETTER.

If there is anything more coldly uncharacteristic than a type written letter, please tell me what it is. The little turns and twists we look for at the end of certain words have a degree of individuality about them that brings the writer before one's eyes. Sometimes the written lines run up the page and sometimes they straggle down, but they always follow and illustrate the bent of the writer's mind, and if one has to puzzle a while over an illegible word or two it only makes the pleasure of reading the letter last longer. Who ever tied up a bundle of type written letters with a blue ribbon and treasured them for years! And not the most blindly adoring girl ever filled her ribbon drawer with missives cliqued off on the noisy little machine. Howells says: "The man of the future will not know how to write, he will typewrite." If that be true, the woman of the future will not keep his letters.—New York Press.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

The Financial Situation.

The first week of the new year has demonstrated that we have substantially come to the end of our gold imports for this season. Foreign exchange, after having declined towards the close of the old year, has again advanced, until this week the nominal rate for short sterling closes at 4 86, with the market firm. That state of the exchanges we may assume virtually terminates this season's movement of bullion to America.

The year has opened with a very easy money market. Offerings even on time are liberal, indicating a prevailing belief in a continued abundance for the winter months at least. This week the banks have made a further and material gain in reserve, largely on account of government disbursements for interest. Notwithstanding the very heavy transactions at the Stock exchange at generally advancing prices calling for large borrowings by the commission houses, money on call representing bankers' balances has tended downward since the beginning of the week, loaning then at 4 and later at 3 1-2 per cent. as the highest and falling to 2 per cent. almost daily since Wednesday and yesterday getting down to 1 1-2 per cent. The average for the week has been 3 per cent., at which renewals have been made; banks and trust companies, however, maintain 4 as the minimum, although they do comparatively little on call. Time money is pressing on the market from all quarters, and while the demand is fair it is by no means urgent. The rates for good stock exchange collateral are 3 per cent. for 30 days; 3 1-2 for 60 days and 4 for 90 days to four months and 4 1-2 for 5 to 6 months.—N. Y. Financial Chronicle.

The Markets.

London wheat and corn markets quiet at opening, easier tendency. Liverpool wheat dull and 1-2 pence lower; corn firm and 1-4d higher.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 590,250 bu., compared with 351,603 bu. on the same day last year.

Wheat Stocks.—Toledo decreased 19,477 bu.; New York increased 306,777 bu.

The New York Financial Chronicle reports gross earnings of 62 roads for fourth week in December increased 7.13 per cent.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 435, against 329 the previous week, and 403 for the corresponding week in 1890.

Bradstreet's says: Whether the bulls are to find special significance in the fact that stocks of wheat available in the United States and Canada, east of the Rocky mountains, January 1, 1892, after a yield of 612,000,000 bu. of wheat in the United States alone, and a larger crop in Canada than usual, are nevertheless 18,000,000 bu. smaller than on January 1, 1887, following a crop of 457,000,000 bu. in the United States—is not plain. Our exports from the crop of 1891 have been practically unprecedented, which will go far to account for the drain of what might have been the total of available stocks on January 1, 1892. On the Pacific coast no special feature attaches itself to the total of available stocks of wheat, 8,843,300 bu., against 12,944,100 bu. one year ago, and 7,565,000 bu. two years ago.

The receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth to-day are 395,044 bu. and at five other principal western points 195,176 bu. At the latter points receipts are decreasing.

The export clearances Saturday at four Atlantic ports were: Wheat 184,118 bu and flour—without Philadelphia—425,000 bu. Exports of corn were 533,403 bu and oats 31,944 bu.

English markets as reported herein opened dull and lower for wheat and firmer for corn.

Again the bears have met the friends of wheat. The contest was prearranged on Sunday. Early this morning the beligerents came together and the banners of the bulls soon trailed in the dust. Prices squatted 1c bu in ten minutes. The decline tendency seems to be irresistible and prices break at the touch of opposition. How can the decline be stopped? We give it up. Communications on this subject will be thankfully received. We need the consolation of dealers. We have done all in our power to fix a standard of one dollar at the lake markets on this crop, but the stars have fought against us, and we are weary. Dealers throughout the world have overdone the business. They were so eager to supply what was supposed to be an enormous deficiency that they piled up the stuff in the first half of the cereal year and now must wait until it is eaten up.

It is profitless to estimate what may occur when these stocks abroad are reduced to reasonable limits. Opinions are at a discount, but we will consult the kindergarten school. They know about as much as the average dealer about it, and then we will advise our friends.

After a decline of 1c per bu after opening, the wheat market recovered 1-2c to 5-8c of the loss, but on receipt of closing Liverpool quoting a sharp decline, prices again broke off in excess of the early decline.

The corn market has been about steady west, but closed lower in New York.

Liverpool is reported closing lower for both wheat and corn. Paris and Antwerp also reported closing lower.

In New York January wheat closed 1 1-8c and May 1 1-2c lower. January and May corn 1-2c lower. Oats steady. In Chicago January wheat closed 1c and May 1 1-2c lower. January corn 1-4c higher and May 1-8c lower. January oats 1-8c lower.

In Toledo we have had the usual business in wheat trading, but at lower prices. Opening prices were at a loss of 7-8c to 1c but later the market gained 3-8c, only to lose it, and more, on lower cables, and the close was at the lowest prices of the day. In May the loss is 1 1-2c. Opening at 97 1-8 to 97c, selling up to 97 3-8c, and closing at 96 1-2c. January sold at 91 1-2c.

Cash wheat was in much better demand at the decline of 1 1-2c. No. 2 soft sold at 92 1-4 92 1-2c, and declined and closed at 91 1-2c; No. 3 soft at 89 1-4 to 88 1-2c; rejected No. 1 at 86c; No. 2 white at 92 1-2c.

Corn—No. 2 at 42 1-4c; No. 3 at 40 1-4 to 40c; No. 4 at 38 1-2c; January at 43c, closing at 42c. Rye—No. 2 at 89c; No. 3 at 86c.

Clover seed was dull and very quiet. Prices about steady. Prime for cash at $5 55; No. 2 at $5 25 to $5 35; nothing in futures.

The visible supply of wheat decreased last week 64,000 bu, corn increased 838,000 bu, oats decreased 191,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat decreased 328,000 bu, corn increased 57,400 bu, oats decreased 25,000 bu.

Seed Market.

The receipts of this commodity at Toledo last week were 1,209 bags, shipments 2,470 bags. In the corresponding week in 1891 the receipts were 2,394 bags, shipments 3,112 bags. Since September 1 to January 9, receipts have been 48,806 bags, and the shipments 32,429 bags, compared with receipts 46,889 bags and shipments 36,571 bags in the corresponding period in 1890-91.

The exports from New York for the week ending January 2, were 1,587 bags, and since September 1 to same date 39,808 bags, compared with 32,553 bags in the corresponding period in 1890-91.

Baltimore Seeds—The inflated condition west has had its legitimate outcome, and to-day's advices from there announce the expectation of lower prices. The offerings are free from that quarter at reduced prices, but the foreigners are not responding appreciably. Exports for the week, clover, 6,574; timothy, 2,700; flax, 1,125.

Whisky trust was especially weak, dropping 1 per cent. in the last half of the first hour. WHY GAS WAS SHUT OFF

At Auburndale, as Stated by Superintendent Daly.

"The situation at Auburndale is just this," said Manager Daly to a Bee this morning. "We shut off the gas from consumers who have been taking unjust advantage of us, by boring out their mixers, and some went so far as to run the open pipe into the stove. When we notified consumers of the intended change from the mixer to the meter system, these people at Auburndale waited until the last minute to make application. They wouldn't let us set their meters when we were prepared for it and making the rounds, but waited until we had taken the wagons and men off the road, then they wanted meters. That simply made an additional expense for us, and we concluded to let these consumers go through the winter on the mixer rate. They didn't like this, and, to even up, they took No. 3 mixers and then bored them out to suit themselves. We argued, and pleaded with them, and finally were compelled to shut them off to protect ourselves and consumers who have been honest with us. There is plenty of gas, if they want to pay for it. A meter has no effect whatever on the supply of gas. It measures the gas consumed and nothing more, but the supply can then be regulated as the consumer pleases, and we have nothing to say."

HEAVY SNOW.

New York, Jan. 11.—A heavy fall of snow is reported from all points west of Rochester. In Buffalo, Erie and Cleveland the fall has been three feet in many places.

All trains from the west this morning were from one to three hours late. The passengers report heavy snow everywhere and intense cold.

TRIBUTE TO TOM WARD.

Representative Bookshire, of Indiana, says a Washington letter, who was intimately acquainted with the late Thomas B. Ward of that state, had this to say of him at the Metropolitan.

"His memory deserves more than a passing notice. Nature had blessed him with a rich dower of all the qualities that fascinate men. In amiability of character he was the peer of the best of earth, and all that was lovable in human nature was exemplified in Tom Ward. Through an uncompromising democrat he was elected judge in a county easily controlled by the opposition, and won a seat in congress over that distinguished republican, Godlove S. Orth, overcoming a large republican majority by the sheer force of personal popularity. His ability on the bench, before a jury in the house of representatives was unquestioned. No better lawyer than Ward ever lived in the Wabash region, the bar of which would stand comparison with any in the union. His great ability as an advocate was clearly shown in several intricate contested election cases during his congressional career. But his learning was not confined to his profession. He was a superb scholar, familiar with many languages, and a more omniverous reader never lived. I actually believe he had read nearly every book in the congressional library.

"His style of oratory was Ingersollian. His speeches were prose poems shining with epigrams and of lofty strain. Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks loved him devotedly and often spoke of his wonderful intellect. In fact, he was beloved by everybody, and many an eye moistened and many a heart beat sadly when the news came that Tom Ward was no more."

JUDAISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

Over the signature "Josephus" we find the following in the January Century: "Deep in the heart of Judaism is enshrined a sacred, an immortal word—duty—which makes of man a mortal being and links him to the moral source of the universe. Deep in the heart Christianity is enshrined a sacred and immortal word—love—which makes of man a spiritual being and links him to the divine source of life. Humanity needs both these words in order to become the perfect creation it was meant to be. The one gives the conscience, the other the heart of mankind; the one is the masculine, the other the feminine element of the world. Judaism gives the Ten Commandments and Christianity the Beatitudes. But only the two together can yield the perfect ideal—the love that is simply the highest duty, and duty that is lost in love. And, in order to come into this closer, higher union into the faith which makes humanity whole, and not a thing of parts, and the truth which makes men free, fixed and formal codes must disappear; the outer framework of history and theology must fall away, and spirit be left free to seek spirit. Then and then only, will life have its whole meaning, as part of a larger life whose beginning and end are hidden from moral vision. Religion will have its full sway, and yet there will be none who persecute, and none who are persecuted, 'for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.'"

Mr. Flickinger has an opinion as is an opinion of his friend, Mr. Jacob Romeis, which he may give to the public some day.

The Commercial Gazette tries very hard to smooth over the roughness of its senatorial fight, but makes a bungling job of it. The boys in charge do not possess the recuperative faculties which characterize the old Field Marshal and Deacon Dick Smith.

Mr. Blaine was not expected to appear at the Boston merchants' banquet because he had assured them it would not be possible, but he did promise a letter on reciprocity, and even that failed to appear. The secretary has tried the silent-as-the-sphinx policy with great success during the late years of his statesmanship, and he has also learned something about letter writing.

In the main Gov. McKinley's inaugural address is a practical state paper containing much sound business sense. It is not partisan. There is evidence that the Governor will be conservative in all things. He will probably give the state an administration somewhat like the three terms of Gov. Hayes. It is certain that at no time will he be a high-flyer like that governor of skin cane notoriety, Mr. Foraker.

The Fifty-second congress has the largest party majority in the house ever recorded in the history of the coutnry. It starts out with much bad legislation to undo, with an empty treasury and an unscrupulous enemy snapping and snarling at its movements, whatever they may be. All the patience and conservatism for which the democracy is distinguished, will be needed in the duties which confront the legislators, new and old.

London will have a new magazine—not a powder magazine, but a literary monthly. It will be edited by Jerome K. Jerome and Luke Sharp (Robert Barr). The initial number will appear next week with Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Andrew Lang, James Payn and the two editors, of course, as some of the contributors named. Mr. Clemens' "American Claimant," which looks at the reader from the syndicate page of every other newspaper in this country will be the first serial story. If we go on mixing up in this fashion, all possibilities of a war with England, even on paper and for political purposes only, will be quite out of the question.

It is expected that all possible advantage will be taken of figures, manipulated in all possible fashions, in attempting to prove that the McKinley law with its free trade addendum is responsible for all increase of trade as of crops and prosperity of whatever nature. In regard to Brazil, for instance: in 1888 our exports to that country amounted in value to $7,063,892; in '89, $9,276,511, and in '90, to $11,902,496, showing conclusvely that our export trade was steadily increasing without the new law. When the organs make comparisons between the years before and the year after, they will "average" the value for the three years preceding and make a different showing.

Indianapolis means to have the national democratic convention of 1892 if hustling will get it. The Indianapolis News prints a two-column cut of "Our Convention Hall," with specifications of the plans. It is all on paper, so far, of course; but if the plans were carried out, as no doubt they would be if that city were selected, the convention hall would be of the finest. The claim is made that Indianapolis is the most central point in the country, that political considerations are in its favor, and that, finally, the committee of arrangements can take care of 56,900 people. It is in these last figures the showing is weakest. The claim is that the 28 hotels of the city can take in 12,500 guests. The rest are to be satisfied with boarding houses, or eating at restaurants and sleeping in "900 side-tracked sleepers." That won't do. Whatever city gets the convention must have ample hotel accommodations for at least 50,000 people.

Emperor William of Germany has perfected his bill against drunkenness, to his own idea, at least, and next week the reichstag will consider the measure. Dispatches from Berlin are to the effect that, while doubtful of the practicability of its extreme measures, the legislative body will pass the bill and watch its results in an experimental frame of mind. The clause of the measure which empowers officers to prosecute all habitual drunkards, upon information, is the one which meets with the greatest objection, as the difficulty to draw the line of distinction between habitual drunkards and habitual drinkers who come not yet in the category of the prescribed class, is great; and, as German human nature is much the same as human nature in this or any other country, the objectionable clause opens wide the door for malicious prosecution and no end of spite work. Nations which are struggling with the drink problem will watch this effort of an Emperor with great interest, laudable in its conception though it shall fail in execution.

The public has frequently been regaled with stories in Republican newspapers of the country about hungry and office-seeking democrats, but it is doubtful whether it has ever been necessary for the democratic press to make an appeal such as the following, which appeared in the Columbus Journal of Saturday. Talk about hungry democrats should cease:

"Governor-elect McKinley will arrive in the city to-day and familiarize himself this evening with the arrangements for inauguration in the hopes of having a day of quiet and rest over Sunday previous to the ceremonies of Monday. There are few people who realize the anxiety and annoyance to which a man is subjected in Major McKinley's present position. We appeal for his relief at this time in the interest of the state and humanity. The horde of applicants for places should not annoy him until after he is inaugurated. Give the man a rest and peace at least until he is sworn in. It will be necessary for General Pocock and others to have considerable business with him this evening and he desires to rest on Sunday. The inauguration will be on Monday, and after that date Governor McKinley must stand the pressure, but we hope he will be spared for the next three days."

The stockholders and managers of the New York Central attended the funeral of the victims of the Hastings accident, and this is how a metropolitan "Jeames Yellowplush" wrote about one of them on that occasion:

"The young man, whose wealth is computed at over fifty millions, stood * * * an attentive, devout and sad participant in the obsequies; his pale face, fringed just beneath the ears with tufts of black whiskers, wor a melancholy expression. He was attired in a neat fitting suit of black, black gloves and tie. He stood when the congregation rose, knelt when it knelt, and sat when it sat. Throughout the long service he remained with set, saddened face, and most of the time with bowed head. Never once did he glance around to see who was there, and not once did he exchange words with his pew companion."

And this is how the editor of Harper's Weekly commented on the pathetic effort:

A gentleman behaved like a gentleman, and yet, strange to say, he is computed to be worth fifty millions of dollars! Evidently the awe-stricken Jeames supposes that a man so rich might be naturally expected to wear a red coat and yellow breeches at a funeral, to rise when the congregation sat down, to sit down when it rose, and to dance a jig when it knelt. That a rich man should condescend to be a gentleman evidently amazes Jeames, and with trembling fingers he records the wondrous fact, which is then placed within the possession of every friend of humanity for the insignificant sum of two cents. These are the things that inspire respect and admiration for a free and independent press.

A Bitter But Wholesome Dose.

If Mr. Foraker is a subscriber to a clippings bureau and diligently reads the notices of himself which appear in the newspapers of this country, republican and democratic, he is in a position to gain a great deal of information about himself which ought to be as valuable as it is unpleasant.—New York World.

The Democratic House.

The proposal to appropriate money from the national treasury for the relief of the Russian sufferers was very properly defeated in the house. Congress has no more right to tax Americans to help Russians than it has to tax them for the benefit of Andrew Carnegie of Scotland.—St. Louis Republic.

Senator Perkins' Qualification.

The new senator from Kansas seems to be fully qualified for political preferment. Ex-Gov. St. John sums up his fitness with the remark that during twenty-three years' acquaintance between himself and Perkins the latter has been only thirty days out of office.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The People Are With Him.

Go ahead, Chairman Springer, with your free-wool-and-cheaper-clothing issue. The democratic party of New York and the entire country will support you. If that sort of legislation is "piebald legislation," the more of it the better for the democracy and the people.—Buffalo Courier.

The Rising Scale.

A few days ago Garza was only a bandit. Now that his followers are growing he is spoken of as revolutionist. If he should succeed in the overthrow of President Diaz he will be added to the list of Mexican patriots.—Chicago Press.

A Great Day for Harrison.

Yesterday was a great day for Mr. Harrison. He drove a nail in Brother Foraker's coffin and received with commingled emotions the intelligence of the derangement of Mr. Blaine's stomach.—Kansis City Star.

Karl the Big Politician.

Hon. C. A. Flickinger is, to-day, the biggest politician in Toledo. The election of Sherman makes Flickinger the dispenser of federal patronage for that district. Now he will go to congress.—Defiance Crescent.

That Would Be Reciprocity.

How would it do for New York to adopt reciprocity? If Ohio thinks 17 to 4 is about right, let the empire state fix it at 30 to 4.—The Massillonian.

Has a Grip on His Tongue.

If Blaine can hold his own as successfully as he holds his tongue, nothing can keep him from the presidential nomination.—Atlanta Journal.

Accounted For.

Mr. Blaine's attack of nausea is easily accounted for. He had been reading the recently published utterances of his volunteer guardians in Minneapolis.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Practical Reciprocity.

Mr. Blaine may be excused for not going to Boston. Boston has always been slow in going for Blaine.—Philadelphia Record.

STREET CAR COLLISIONS

Which Might Have Proved Serious, but Fortunately Did Not.

A street railroad wreck occurred at the intersection of Adams and St. Clair streets last night about 10 o'clock which was of an exceedingly serious nature, but fortunately no one was injured.

On account of the heavy fall of snow the Consolidated motors were doubled up. The two lines cross at the foot of a very steep grade. The Consolidated Bellevue park cars and a Robison Forest cemetery car both struck the grades at about the same time. The Bellevue park cars were just a little ahead, and the leader was about half over the crossing when the Robison motor struck it amidships. The force of the shock threw the Consolidated motor from the track at almost right angles, and the fore end of the Robison car was badly jammed up, but not disabled. The passengers in both cars were shaken up pretty much and badly frightened. Those aboard the Consolidated car realized the danger, but all seemed transfixed to their seats excepting one lady, who would tip the beam at 200 easy. She seemed to appreciate the danger and arose to a standing posture with an expression of horror that was pitiful to behold. She exclaimed, "Land sa—" when the crash came, followed by a thud and a stifled groan. The 200 pounds of frightened woman had been precipitated into the lap of a little man who was crouched in the corner. He received a shock from both ways and was the only one who sustained any injury, being a slightly sprained wrist.

Another accident occurred on the St. Clair street line at the intersection of Maumee avenue and South street. A salt car was making a trip on the St. Clair line. At this crossing an asylum car failed to stop and the salt car is now reposing in the scrap heap.

There is no question but the electric cars on both lines run too fast, especially at crossings. When the accident occurred at Adams and St. Clair street crossings neither driver sounded a gong or slowed down. Had they done so the accident would not have occurred.

Saturday afternoon as the Lake Shore train was coming from the north it did not stop, as is customary, north of the Auburndale gate, and the old man who attends the gate signaled the approaching street car to cross the track, which resulted in a collision, the engine striking the rear end of the car, lifting it from the track. Fortunately the accident did not result seriously.

Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock two of the Robison electric cars creeping up the grade in front of the First Presbyterian church, on Huron street, were crashed into by another car on the same line coming down the hill at a furious rate, the motor man having lost control of the brake. The passengers were somewhat shaken up and scared, but no one was injured. One lady was frightened into hysterics but with no serious result. The front platforms of the cars were badly broken.

FREE TEMPERANCE MEETING.

Every One Invited and a Good Time Promised.

There will be a social and literary gathering at the Lagrange Street Congregational church this evening, a meeting under the auspices of the temperance organizations. Committees from the I. O. G. T. and the W. C. T. U. have arranged a good program of exercises, consisting of readings, recitations, singing, etc. Grand Chief Harry White of the Good Templars will be present, and it is understood Mrs. Judge Bentley will give one of her inimitable recitations. The public cordially invited.

REPORT CONFIRMED.

London, Jan. 11.—The Times, Daily News, Standard and Chronicle, and other leading newspapers this morning all confirm the report that the Khedive died from the effect of an overdose of morphine, administered by a native physician.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That counterfeit 50-cent pieces are in circulation.

That Coroner Beckwith has started in like an old hand.

That business for the new year opens up in first-class shape.

That coal and ice merchants are wearing their blandest smiles.

That Chief O'Dwyer feels reasonably happy since his vindication.

That the aldermen have another whack at the garbage question to-night.

That Mayor Emmick has a congressional bee buzzing under his fur cap.

That about three car loads of salt were used by the street car companies last week.

That Billy Vena is still without substantial recognition from the republican party.

That there are more red hats worn by ladies this winter than has been the case for years.

That Louis Rohr is being "mentioned" as Councilman Coleman's successor from the old Fifth ward.

That most of the political prophets of the city were away off in calculations as to recent events.

That the movement to make Representative Flickinger a congressman from Toledo is taking deep root.

That the Miami canal and Swan creek have been turned into skating rinks the full length within the city limits.

That Senator McConica proposes to fly high in the Ohio senate, since he has no expectation of returning.

That the gas trustees would be happy were this cruel cold spell over, and the feeling is shared by consumers.

That an agreement has not yet been reached as to the sale of either the First Presbyterian or Wesminster churches.

That Representative Griffin is for Earl Kerans for steward at the asylum, and Hughes, of Findlay, will get the slip.

That while the late Dr. Coldham was a general favorite among Toledo physicians he never united with the local society.

That Mayor Emmick should call a public meeting to discuss the propriety of assisting in the passage of Toledo bills in congress.

That Collector Waldorf denies he is an applicant for the state oil inspectorship, though if pressed he would exchange places.

That shareholders in the building and loan companies are rejoicing over the 8 per cent. dividends received from last year's earnings.

That Judge Sala will find it to his interest to be a gentleman under every circumstance; he appears not to know what that means.

That the congressional gerrymander bills already introduced in the legislature do not meet with favor among our friends the enemy.

That the struggle for supremacy between the Sherman and Foraker forces in Toledo is already occupying attention by day and by night.

That it would take the 587 languages said to be spoken in Europe to express the feelings of the Foraker followers in Toledo toward Mr. Flickinger.

That Col. Brewer of Bowling Green is handing out a few curtain lectures to his fellow republicans in the legislature relative to the proposed gerrymanders.

That the hari-kari partnership between Judge Sala and the mayor has been dissolved. Twould have been better for Mr. Emmick if it had never been formed.

That the lines will hardly be drawn very close by the republicans, notwithstanding the "impending conflict," as some are pleased to term the coming campaign.

That an effort will be made to repeal the act forbidding the appointment of trustees, superintendents and stewards from counties in which state institutions are located.

That the Y. M. C. B. A. will fit up their new headquarters on the corner of Summit and Jefferson streets in the highest style of the art, and make it a home indeed and in truth.

That the formal election of John Sherman to the United States senate will take place to-morrow and Wednesday, and a little more salt will be dropped on the wounds not yet healed.

That Col. Joe Bonner could unravel a story as to Mr. Heller's promises before and after election, if he was not so decidedly in favor of harmony. The whole business will come out in the wash some day.

That the efforts of Congressman Haynes to secure an addition to Toledo's government building should be backed by strong support from the Produce exchange, council and board of trade. A strong pull and a pull all together will do the business.

That Dr. Rorick is said to have a cinch on the asylum superintendency since he has the aid of the Shermanites. The Doctor has labored zealously to bring his brother, the senator, into the ranks of the faithful, and though unsuccessful, will have his reward.

A BLAZE AT CYGNET.

Fire Fighters Have a Hard Conflagration to Control.

Cygnet, O., Jan. 11.—At 2 o'clock Sunday morning fire was discovered in the rear of the grocery and dry goods store of W. S. Harkins, the second story of which building was occupied by the secret societies of the town.

Fire soon caught the small dwelling houses on the east side, and fears were entertained that the entire town would burn. On account of frozen hose, the fire department was unable to get water to the spot. The flames were stopped by the razing of an empty store-room.

Harkins' building was burned and he suffered a loss of $4,000; secret societies, $400; Marion Bradley, $350; Fred Henry, $350. Cause unknown and insurance not yet determined.

STEWARD DAN HARTNETT.

This paragraph from the Mutes' Chronicle, published at Columbus, will be read with pleasure by the many friends of Steward Dan Hartnett, of Napoleon, who has charge of the deaf and dumb institution at the state capital:

"That this is a business administration is evident from the fact that Steward Hartnett collected delinquent bills to the amount of about $1,800 last year. This winter he has collected about $1,200, and he thinks he can collect at least $5,000 of the $7,000 due the institution. Some of the bills date as far back as 1883. The attorney general says that he is glad to see at least one steward in the state collecting what belongs to it."

SATURDAY SEWING CLASSES.

The weekly classes in plain sewing were commenced Saturday at the Broadway, Nebraska and Franklin schools. Miss Mabel Wilson had charge of the classes at the first two schools and Miss Mary Cooper of the other. Much interest in this work was manifested by the girls at the different schools, and large classes were on hand at each place. There were 67 at Broadway, 45 at Nebraska and 57 at Franklin. This work will be extended to other ward schools where the pupils take enough interest to organize classes.

WANTS $15,000.

Norwalk, O., Jan. 11.—(Special)—Benjamin Franklin Keyes, a former brakeman on the Wheeling & Lake Erie road, has just brought suit in the Huron common pleas court for $15,000 for damages caused by being knocked off a freight car and breaking his arm.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Salvationist Booth is holding revival services in India, where his audiences are not very large or enthusiastic.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, is in favor of making Saturdays in summer time whole instead of half holidays.

The late Gen. W. T. Sherman used to refer fondly to his daughter, who has just become Mrs. Dr. Thorndike, as "My auburn-haired Rachel."

The late Senator Plumb added the "b" to his name when he was 10 years old. He did it partly from fancy and partly from convenience.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jennings Demorest have given away $50,750 worth of medals to the young participants in the oratorical contests held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

Lem Lincoln, a full cousin of Abraham Lincoln, lives near Liberty, Mo. He was raised with Abe until both were young men, almost grown, and they were like brothers together, so close was their connection. Mr. Lincoln is a prosperous farmer, a great sportsman, and is a man who is fond of the fellowship of other men. He says Abe was a rail-splitter, and made good rails.

SHOULD TRIM OUR LIGHTS,

For That Which We Shed Is What We Are.

Rev. Fisk at the First Congregational Expounded Some Sound Facts Yesterday Morning.

Yesterday morning at the First Congregational church Prof. Fisk delivered a very able sermon, taking for his text, "The Light you Shed is the Man you Are." This he claimed was hardly a mingling of fact and metaphor, but deeply viewed the two aspects of one common fact. We, like all machines, are never creators of power. Power physical streams into us from sun, food, air, a ceaseless, awful stream of energy. Burn the loaf you eat, and see the heat set free; that loaf gives the same energy up to you, if equally fully burned, but more slowly. The activities of mind and body, work, resistance to cold, maintenance of life itself, are dependent on this unintermitting current of power flowing into us, and utilized by us. We are each a furnace for the abstraction of heat, or energy. But we cannot hold it, no more than we can the matter we lodge it in. Both swiftly pass—the flesh we are, the power we use, that momently imprisoned sunshine swiftly breaks its bars and leaps on into space, lost to us and this world. What good was its coming to us? What stays when the forces and the fabrics built are both gone? What is permanent in all this shifting dream? Certainly not "Time." No might can hold a second, no bribe buy up an hour. So, between the awful seraphim of matter and radiant power, swiftly hurrying on the scene.

And this only is left—the Quality we put in each moment of time, the choice we sowed each stream of power with, the character that grew out of each decision—the patience, or petulance, that matter and force put on record, the obedience to duty, or the revolt from helpfulness. These decisions, these eternal moral facts survive, and are added up as self, as character. Not the things we have, not the energies we direct, but the purpose we put in them, the love, the hate, the forbearance, the treason—these give awful and sole significance to actions, to events. These are the lights we shed. It was God's light only till we redirected it and made it embody the quality of our choice, then it became ours by the bent we gave it. That bent points back to the kind of soul that bent it thus, and becomes a record of its decision. I am what I did with opportunity, with power. While the light of God streamed through me I had the chance to use it for good to itself and world. Did I?

The power came to me a non-moral fact, or at least, not immoral; it was mine to turn it to moral uses, to face it toward human need, helpfully or hurtfully. Moral decisions only crown or dis-crown self-hood. How far from fact is the claim? The light I shed is ultimately the man I am. In its outstreaming direction my will, my decision is lodged; it is the ceaseless tell-tale of my innermost self, as a deciding soul. It adds up myself. How?

OHIO'S SENATORIAL ELECTION.

What Some Newspapers Outside of Ohio Think of It.

Foraker went down with a "I'll-see-you-later-at-Minneapolis" gleam in his eye.—Washington Post.

When the froth was blown from the Foraker glass at Columbus the glass was half empty.—Buffalo Courier.

Obviously, John Sherman exceeded Joseph Benson Foraker in the length both of his head and his purse.—Courier-Journal.

The result of the Ohio senatorial contest will probably be the permanent extinguishment of Fire Alarm Foraker.—Atland Journal.

Foraker's senatorial boom presented a very attractive appearance before Uncle Sherman tackled it with his cold-chisel.—Washington Post.

The friends of Mr. Foraker are very proud of his pluck. They do not express themselves so freely as to his mouth.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Mr. Sherman was re-elected to the senate yesterday, but his nomination for the presidency is just as far off as ever.—St. Louis Star Sayings.

Foraker has been snubbed again. What a variety of unhappy experiences that little man has been enjoying since he had his measure taken.—Philadelphia Record.

John Sherman in the United States senate is a known quantity. Foraker would be an uncertain factor, ready for anything to secure another term.—Kansas City Star.

The re-election of Sherman to the United States senate saves the country from the danger of four-acre speeches of the bloody-shirt variety.—Chicago Press.

John Sherman will go back to the senate and represent Boston mortgage-owners as faithfully as ever. And so he will be worth 500,000 votes to the democrats next November.—St. Louis Republic.

There is one thing to be said for Foraker, despite all his fire-alarm tendencies, he knows how to swallow defeat gracefully. He can smile and smile and clutch his knife still.—Wheeling Register.

The republicans in the Ohio legislature saved themselves and their party from grave discredit by nominating John Sherman instead of Foraker for the senate.—New York World.

Foraker and his friends went out and bragged about how many votes the skyrocket statesman had and then Sherman and his friends quietly went to work and captured several of them.—New Orleans New Delta.

Sherman will be the senator, Foraker is shelved and Wall street laughs in its sleeve. * * * Oh, how friendly was that contest in Ohio. Foraker would gladly see his dear friend Sherman die for him.—Free Press.

No; the republicans of Ohio have not forgotten the man who nobly came forward to the aid of a defeated party, and by his energy and statesmanship seated a president who was not elected.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

John Sherman's election to the United States senate over his one competitor, Foraker, seems to be now assured. The country, therefore, is to be spared the spectacle, and the din, of a pea on a hot griddle.—New York Telegram.

The nomination is, of course, equivalent to a re-election of Senator Sherman, who may now, perhaps, count upon ending his days in the senate. A thorough partisan, he is still a man of recognized ability, and worth a hundred Forakers in statesmanship.—Baltimore Sun.

The most interesting phase of this senatorial fight will come when Mr. Foraker, who is exceedingly sour against the administration, shall proceed to gather the sweets of revenge in the Minneapolis convention by "taking it out of Harrison."—Philadelphia Record.

The victory of John Sherman in his contest with Foraker is something for the people of Ohio to be proud of. It is the triumph of a statesman over a wirepuller, of a man who loves his country, as well as his party, over a demagogue who uses his party and forgets his country.—New York Herald.

Mr. Sherman has not been a friend of the south, and it would have no occasion to lament his downfall; but he is a historic figure, a man of vast information and real ability, and it would be a stroke of the irony of fate were he driven from public life by an exposed trickster and empty rhetorician.—New Delta.

Mr. Sherman's victory under these conditions must be regarded as infinitely more of a tribute to his high traits of character than if his renomination had been unopposed. If the schemers and conspirators, the small politicians, the machine which had grown up in Cincinnati and some other Ohio cities, had had their way he would have undoubtedly been defeated.—Boston Journal.

Mr. Foraker, whatever claims to be preferred to Mr. Sherman may be known in Ohio, beyond that state and to the country is known politically merely as a violent stump-speaker and an unscrupulous politician. As a public man in the true sense, or as especially fitted, like Mr. Sherman, for the great place of senator, Mr. Foraker is not known at all beyond his state.—Harper's Weekly.

Ohio and the entire nation are to be congratulated, not only that the most capable and experienced senator in the upper branch of congress is to be allowed to round out his life in the public service, but that Foraker will vanish from public view at least for a season. He is too much of a Jack-in-the-box to stay in retirement permanently, but he will be compelled to subside for a time, and for this relief much thanks.—Philadelphia Times.

We have all along maintained that Senator Sherman would be renominated by the republican caucus. Even when the Foraker pretensions were at their loudest, and claims were made that the victory of that tricky politician was assured, we refused to believe that Ohio would turn away from her great senator to give him a successor so inferior from every point of view. We rejoice that our anticipations have been emphatically borne out.—Boston Herald.

MINISTER MONTT TALKS.

The Chilian Trouble Discussed Again.

The Southern Country Has Taken No Action Yet, and the State Department Don't Like It.

New York, Jan. 11.—The Press publishes the following Washington special:

It is learned that Senor Montt, Chilian minister to Washington, has within a few hours held an interview with a representative official of the United States state department. The official asked Senor Montt:

"Is it true that your government is preparing to make a proposition to submit the differences between the United States and Chile to arbitration?"

Senor Montt replied: "If you mean that I have received word officially or from any one in authority to that effect I answer 'No'."

"Have you been apprised that your government is taking steps to meet the demands of the United States?"

Senor Montt made identically the same reply to this question as the one above.

Asked how the Chilian government came to indict or convict an American sailor (Davidson) for murder without his presence and without notification, Senor Montt simply said that such was the law of his country. A shrug of the shoulders was the only answer he gave to the inquiry as to what means would be employed to place Davidson in custody.

The categorical questions and shifting replies were in possession of President Harrison half an hour after their exchange. They indicate that the policy of the administration is as firm as ever and that Chile will be enabled to meet every demand the United States has made. Senor Montt realizes this, and it is said he has sent his cousin, the president of Chile, a long cipher dispatch, urging some fulfillment of the vague promises he has been led to make.

ENTERTAINMENT AND INSTALLATION.

The officers of Lucas Lodge, No. 448, K. of P., were installed Saturday evening. A pleasing program of exercises was arranged, friends were invited in and the occasion proved a most enjoyable one. There were selections on the piano by Miss Carrie Burge and Mrs. G. D. Dale, vocal solos by Misses Bessie Stork and Daisy Burge, and the Uhl brothers gave some clever musical selections. J. E. McGinnis and Tom Devereaux appeared in a laughable farce. Col. J. Austin, jr., delivered a bright address, and those assembled rounded a pleasant evening with refreshments and sociability.

He ate dinner with his family at 3 o'clock in his usual health and then sat down in a chair to read, when suddenly he fell to the floor dead. It is supposed to have been caused by heart disease.

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. THE BEST GIFT.

It was neither of gold nor silver,
Nor of aught that either buys;
But never a splendid jewel
Flashed such joy into my eyes.

Yet out of the folds of a letter
Gleamed this simple gift of mine,
And though that were burned to ashes
Just the same these words would shine:

"O, my friend, you have helped me onward;
Now my life grows sweet and strong,
And I bear its burden better
For the singing of your song."

All the gifts that I do but handle
Are mine only till I die,
And the dearest must go to others
In some soulless by and by.

But these word-gems of high assurance
Cast their light beyond the clay;
And my soul shall wear them forever—
The gift of this New Year's day.

The purchase by Baron Hirsch of over 3,000 square leagues of land in the northern part of the Argentine Republic (an area greater than that of the kingdom of Montenegro) is said to make him the possessor of more territory than is owned privately by any other man.

In India it is quite common to shave a man while he is asleep, and if he happens to be lying on his back he can have his beard entirely removed without being disturbed. The native barber has a wonderfully light hand, and is an adept at shaving without causing a fraction of pain. Europeans and Americans traveling in India soon fall into the indolent habits which prevail, one of which is to be shaved in bed before rising and bathing. It is not considered reasonable to visit a barber shop, the moneyed classes being almost always shaved at home and almost as frequently while in bed.

At last there are "overalls" for women, no thanks to the dress reformers either. They do not resemble the blue jeans bifurcated garments with which gardeners have familiarized the world, but they live up to their name by literally enveloping the wearer from head to foot. They take the apron form, of course, fastening at the back and falling from a yoke band in simple gathers, which are confined at the waist by a deep yoke-shaped band. A deep, roomy pocket is placed at the right side. For use in the nursery, the sick room, or performing a hundred and one tasks that fall to the lot of every house-keeper they are invaluable.

For some time a young woman from Sweden has been looking for her sister, of whose whereabouts she knew nothing except that she was somewhere in the United States. Finally, the other day, she drifted to Portland, Me., and in inquiring for this sister mentioned a name that sounded a little like Swift. So she was taken to the store of Mr. Swift in that town, who, however, proved to be entirely ignorant of the girl's whereabouts. But while she was telling her story a man happened to be in the store who said that he had a Swedish servant girl who might possibly be able to help the inquirer. The denouement was quite dramatic, for the servant girl proved to be the long-looked-for sister.

M'KINLEY'S INAUGURAL.

The World's Fair Should Be Largely Aided.

A Warning to the Friends of Gerrymander.

The Canals Should be Fostered—The People of the State in No Condition of Mind to Tolerate Any Jobbery.

Gentlemen of the General Assembly:

I approach the administration of the office with which I have been clothed by the people, deeply sensible of its responsibilities, and resolved to discharge its duties to the best of my ability. It is my desire to co-operate with you in every endeavor to secure a wise, economical and honorable administration, and, so far as can be done, the improvement and elevation of the public service.

Progress of Ohio.

The progress of Ohio in population and wealth between 1880 and 1890, as evidenced by the eleventh census of the United States, will be received by the people of the state with pride and satisfaction.

During this decade the population of the state increased nearly 15 per cent, while that of municipalities, including cities and towns of four thousand inhabitants and upwards, increased 43 per cent. The assessed value of property in the state increased 16 per cent, and that of municipalities of more than four thousand inhabitants increased nearly 27 per cent.

In 1880 the per capita of the state debt proper was $3.13; in 1890 it was only $1.94. Seventy cities and towns of Ohio of four thousand inhabitants and over, with an aggregate population of 1,387,884 (or 38 per cent of the total population of the state), have reduced their municipal indebtedness until it is only $3.31 per capita.

Agriculture, while for a number of years depressed, shows in 1891 an improvement which it is to be hoped will be permanent. In Cincinnati, according to the report of the department of agriculture, during the year 1889, wheat was 76 cents per bushel, while in 1891 it was 97 cents. Corn rose from 31 to 53 cents; rye from 57 to 74 cents; and other products of the farm show a like advance in prices.

Mines and mining also show a healthful advancement. In 1880 the petroleum output of the state was 38,940 barrels, while in 1890 it was 12,471,965 barrels.

The coal output in 1880 was 6,008,595 tons, while in 1890 it was 9,976,787 tons.

The value of sandstone quarried in 1880 was $1,871,924, while in 1890 it was $3,046,656.

The fish industries of the lake shores has increased greatly during the decade. The number of persons actually employed in taking fish on the Ohio lake shores have increased from 925 in 1880 to 1,207 in 1890, or a little over 30 per cent. The capital invested in this industry in 1880 amounted to $473,800; in 1890 it was $1,207,166—an increase of nearly 153 per cent.; and while there were but nine vessels engaged in this industry in 1880, there are 27 so engaged to-day.

There has been an increase in the mileage of railroads within the limits of the state of from 5,655 miles in 1880 to 7,642 in 1889, on their main tracks—an increase of 35 per cent. The cost and value of railroads and equipment have increased from $312,459,197 to $802,583,847. The number of employes engaged upon the lines in Ohio have increased from 29,498 to 79,578. In 1880 the tonnage of freight moved within the borders of the state was 48,511,186; in 1889 it was 93,132,810—an increase of 92 per cent.

Ohio at the world's fair.

Coming now to a consideration of the subjects which claim the attention of the legislature:

The congress of the United States deemed it fitting that the discovery of America should be commemorated by an international exhibition of the evidences of the progress made in civilization. It is intended to disclose what has been accomplished in industrial art and applied science in every department of human activity. The government itself will make an exhibit, illustrating in a scientific way the resources of the nation. Fifty-nine nations and 50 states and territories of the union have accepted invitations to participate.

Ohio was largely instrumental in securing the location of the exposition at the inland metropolis of the republic, near the center of its agricultural and commercial interests. The citizens of Chicago and the state of Illinois have performed their part in providing a most desirable site, embracing a thousand acres of land, with a floor space double that of any previous exposition, and more than $11,000,000.

Not only should the legislature of Ohio see to it that ample provision be made to have a creditable exhibit from this state, but the people and their representatives should also urge upon congress to take such action as will make this exposition worthy the great event it celebrates, and worthy also the dignity and honor of the nation.

State Finances.

The appropriations for public purposes should not at a time like this exceed the receipts of the state treasury. Reports from the state treasurer and state auditor show that this safe rule has not at all times been followed. The receipts from regular sources last year were $3,419,000, while the legislature appropriated $3,678,416—an excess of appropriation over receipts of $259,416. It is true that $322,000, being a part of the amount received from the general government as a refund from the "direct tax," was passed to the credit of the general revenue fund by the legislature, but this has already been exhausted, and the state treasurer has been required to make advance drafts on the county treasurers to prevent a deficiency. This expedient of advance drafts, which has been more or less resorted to since 1885, is contrary to sound business principles, and should be topped.

Taxation.

The people of the state, while submitting patriotically to all needed taxation for the public service, are in no temper for increased taxation. Their insistency is that all kinds of property shall bear equally the burdens of taxation. While this may be impossible to secure, the legislature should make the nearest approach to it possible. This is a subject which will require your closest attention, and upon it I invite your best deliberation.

It has occurred to me that it might be well for the legislature to create a board to be called the state tax revision commission," that will take into consideration the whole subject of state taxation and the powers of the legislature thereon under the constitution, and make report to the present general assembly at the adjourned session.

The Public Institutions.

The public institutions of the state appeal to the legislature and executive for wise and liberal treatment. They should be provided with all needed appropriations. The care of the helpless and unfortunate should not be stinted. Prudent liberality toward them on the part of the legislature will receive the approval of the people of the state.

In the performance of the duties imposed upon me in connection with these institutions, it will be my aim to give to them the services of the best men of the state, whose integrity and capacity will insure the confidence of the people in their administration.

There should be a determination to prevent inefficiency and demoralizaton in the management of the state institutions through the introduction of extreme partisanship.

The Ohio State reformatory at Mansfield should be completed. It is poor economy to leave the buildings unfinished and in a measure unprotected. The state has already appropriated on land, excavating and buildings, upwards of $436,000. But the small appropriations made from time to time have not enabled the state to take advantage of better contracts which could have been made with larger appropriations. It is reported by the board that $250,000 are required to complete the institution, and this amount, or so much thereof as can be used to advantage, should be appropriated without delay. The penitentiary at Columbus is already over-crowded. There are many inmates, guilty of their first felony, who are not hardened criminals, who are young, and who could be made good citizens by separating them from their present associates, instructing them in some useful employment, subjecting them to strict discipline, and giving them proper mental and moral training.

Agricultural Interests.

A law was passed by the last legislature providing for the selection of a permanent location for an agricultural experiment station. Such location, I am advised, has been secured in Wayne county, where a valuable tract of land and a donation of money have been made by the county.

Permanent buildings will be needed for the successful operation of the important work to be carried on at the station, and in order that there may be no unnecessary delay in the prosecution of experiments of so much consequence to both producers and consumers, I recommend that a reasonable appropriation be made promptly to this end.

You need not be reminded that agriculture is one of the most important of our industries, and that it should receive at your hands the most intelligent and considerate attention. The farmers—always conservative, and always loyal to home and country—will not, it is believed, seek any legislation which they do not consider for the general good.

Your consideration is directed to two outstanding financial obligations of the state board of agriculture. On the cost of the grounds and buildings of the State fair is yet an indebtedness of $65,000. To float the second mortgage of $20,000, the members of the state board of agriculture assumed a personal liability for payment, and it is now asked by the board that an appropriation of $20,000 be made by the state to redeem these bonds, and that provision be made for paying the interest on the debt. There is also a debt of $8,000 in unpaid premiums and prizes, authorized, it is said, by the legislature, and for which the board disclaims responsibility.

Country Roads.

The great need in many sections of Ohio is good country roads. This is a subject of importance not only to agriculturists, but affects very material interest in the state, and is receiving very general attention throughout other states in the union. I invite the attention of the legislature to it with the object that some plan be devised, which, with the concurrence of the people, will lead to the improvement of our public highways, so that they will be serviceable in winter as well as summer. Many of our country roads are almost impassable during several months of the year. They should be good the year round for the safety and convenience of travel and transportation.

The consideration of this subject by the legislature would lead to discussion among the farmers of the state, which would furnish valuable suggestions to the legislature.

Protection to Railroad Employes.

Your attention is called to the importance of making every provision possible for the better protection of railroad employes within the state. Their service is of the most hazardous character, and railroads should be required to equip their lines with every improvement calculated to prevent accident.

There are nearly 80,000 persons employed by the railroads within the limits of Ohio, who serve the public with great danger to life and health, and nothing should be withheld from them which legislation can do to throw around them every possible safeguard.

The last report of the interstate commerce commission, up to June 30, 1891, shows that in that year 2,451 railroad employes were killed, and 22,391 others were injured. It is believed that a large percentage of this fearful sacrifice of life and limb can be prevented by the enforcement of proper legislation.

The Canals.

What shall be done with the canals? Shall they be abandoned, or shall they be maintained and improved? Every year the question becomes more pressing.

Each annual controversy over appropriations develops a stronger opposition than the preceding one. Both the friends and opponents of the canals agree that the policy which has prevailed for some years past cannot continue much longer. The canals have been preyed upon and allowed to go to ruin, and now every succeeding legislature refuses to appropriate enough money to put them in proper condition.

The question does not involve appropriations alone, but the modernization of public waterways. Not only experts, but the public at large have arrived at the conclusion that if the canals are to be continued, there must be some well-matured plan for their improvement in the interest of cheap and better transportation.

Throughout the whole country there is at this time unusual attention being paid to the general subject of waterways. An increased activity in the building and improvement of canals is noticeable in some of the most progressive nations of the world—particularly where commercial competition is the keenest. Of this, France and Germany afford conspicuous examples. In England there are several vast ship canal schemes under way and in projection. This revival of interest in canals is true also as to a number of our sister states. Some states that have abandoned their canals are now regretting that action, and several are endeavoring to recover the franchise which had been disposed of to private individuals or to corporations. Canada is now seeking, by enlarging and extending her canals, to secure a large portion of the grain-carrying trade of this continent.

In this connection attention is called to a demonstration in Ohio of the value of improvement of waterways, viz: the Muskingum river, navigation on which will be resumed in the coming spring.

It should ever be kept in mind that the canal system of Ohio represents franchises and rights of way and privileges of enormous value. The aggregate length of the canals of Ohio is 697 miles. The original cost of construction was $14,340,572.59. There are also 29,600 acres of reservoirs which feed the canals—all public property.

The canal system of Ohio is a rich heritage to the state which has been largely squandered. It is time to call a halt to the policy of disposing of the people's property without adequate compensation.

It is for the people to say what they will do with their own, but they should have full information before they forever dispossess themselves of two such valuable franchises as those appertaining to the Miami and Erie canal and the Ohio canal.

This is a matter of general interest to every section of the state, and is not limited to the territory through which the canals pass.

Before the people or the legislature can act upon this important question with intelligence and with a due regard to interests of the state, it is manifest that they should be in possession of more information than is now at hand.

It is therefore recommended that, in addition to making the usual appropriations for the canals, the legislature create a body, with engineering, legal and business qualifications, to make a complete report as to the canals of Ohio—giving their origin, the rights of the state as to title, their cost, the earnings in the past and at present, their value as franchises for railroad or other purposes, as nearly as can be estimated, and particularly as to the possibility and advisability of improving them and increasing their usefulness to the people.

Already there is in existence a body, which, it is suggested, could with propriety be entrusted with this important work.—the Canal Commission.

The New Ballot Law.

The new ballot law, from my observation, meets with very general favor in its scope and purpose, although imperfect in some of its features. It is a step in the right direction, and should not be touched except where it can be improved. It can, do doubt, be made to better serve its purpose by amendments which experience has already suggested. At the recent state election thousands of electors voted for the candidates for governor of their respective parties who were at the head of the tickets, believing that they were voting the entire party ticket. This occurred as to all the party tickets. The true intent of the elector was therefore not registered by the judges, for they were required to count such ballots only for the candidate before whose name a cross was placed.

Would it not be advisable to provide that there should be but one method of marking the ballot—namely, by requiring the elector to place a cross-mark in front of the name of every candidate for whom he desires to vote?

The duties of county and city boards of elections should be more clearly defined.

A "deadlock" as to signing the returns, and another as to issuing a certificate of election in one of the senatorial districts, and the lack of remedy in the courts to solve the difficulty, show that in other particulars there is imperative demand for amendments to the law.

The case referred to suggests the following:

When such a difficulty as that presented to the Muskingum county board arises, and the county board refuses to send in a legal return, the count should nevertheless be made of the returns from the counties regularly made, and a certificate issued to the person thus appearing to be elected, so that the foundation can be laid for a contest, and the district not deprived of representation, because the law and the courts are ineffectual to give relief.

Congressional Redistricting.

You will be required under the new census to redistrict the state for representatives in congress. This will afford you an opportunity to arrange the district with fairness to all. Make the districts so fair in their relation to the political divisions of our people that they will stand until a new census shall be taken. Make them so impartial that no future legislature will dare disturb them until a new census and a new congressional apportionment will make a change imperative.

Extreme partisanship in their arrangement should be avoided. There is a sense of fair-play among the people which is prompt to condemn a flagrant misuse of party advantage at the expense of popular suffrage. Partisanship is not to be discouraged, but encouraged in all things where principle is at stake; but a partisanship which would take from the people their just representation, as in the case of the congressional redistricting by the last legislature, is an abuse of power which the people are swift to rebuke.

You must have observed from the returns of the late election that the party which carried the state by a plurality of more than twenty-one thousand and which received a plurality in 51 counties of the 88 in Ohio, carried but seven congressional districts of the 21—the minority party thus controlling two-thirds of the congressional districts, and the majority party only one-third. It will be your duty to re-enfranchise the citizens of Ohio who were disfranchised by the last legislative "gerrymander," and to restore to the people their rightful voice in the national house of representatives.

Free suffrage is of little service to the citizen if its force can be defeated by legislative machinations in the form of a "gerrymander." The districts should be made so as to give the party majority in the state a majority of representatives, and so arranged that if the party majority shall change the representative majority shall also change.

Responsibility of the Majority.

The elections of last November have given to one of the political parties of the state an almost unprecedented majority in both branches of the legislature. So large a majority will require from every member of the dominant party the exercise of the greatest conservatism. I need not remind you that exceptional responsibility follows the great trust which has been reposed in you by the people, who in turn will hold you to the highest and strictest accountability.

TAKEN FOR A CRANK.

A semi-fiendish delight often seems to possess people of strong nerves in sneering at those with weak ones. The irritability of the nervous hypochondriac is ridiculed as natural ill temper. The very genuine and distressing symptoms from which he suffers are made light of. "He" or "she is a crank" is the cheerful sort of sympathy with which the nervous invalid meets from the unfeeling and the thoughtless. At the same time no complaint is more defined and real, none has a more easily explainable origin when it is chronic. Imperfect digestion and assimilation are always accompanied by nervous debility and anxiety. Build up the powers of assimilation and digestion with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and nervous symptoms, sick headaches and a generally feeble condition of the system are remedied. Remember that fearful ravages are produced by la grippe among weakly, nervous people. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters cures it, and prevents malaria, rheumatism and kidney complaint.

Parties likely to know refuse to confirm or deny the statement, and R. H. Stillwell and wife being in Cuba, it is impossible to learn the facts here. The facts in regard to her attempt to run off to Germany are as follows:

Dr. Hearne had been brutal to her, chastising her at different times, and she went to Chicago, where she was met by R. H. Stillwell and wife. There she made her will and left the doctor $1. R. H. Stillwell and wife witnessed the document and returned home. She left for Germany.

After the doctor induced her to return the will was altered and he was left almost her entire share. This is vouched for by interested parties and also said to be a fact by one of the county court judges.

Mrs. Hearne, it will be remembered, was formerly the wife of A. J. Stillwell, the wealthy lumberman, who was murdered several years ago. That sensation was followed by another in her marriage to Dr. Hearne.

BLOUNT ON RUSSIA.

The Relief Bill Will Probably Pass.

The Senate Did Not Complete Its Work on the Matter and Much Delay Will Follow.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The motion made by Chairman Blount of the foreign affairs committee for a reconsideration of the vote by which the house indefinitely postponed the senate resolution appropriating $100,000 for the transportation of supplies to Russia, will be called up this week and from what Mr. Blount says it seems likely to pass.

In conversation about the matter Mr. Blount said: "When the resolution came before the house, it had passed the senate without investigation and there were a number of questions asked here that could not be answered.

"It was not known definitely whether the ships of the navy could carry the flour and grain contributed, nor could any one tell what disposition the czar would make of the supplies when received.

"I believe the house will now agree to allow the resolution to be referred to a committee where it can receive attention so that when it is again considered by the house all inquiries concerning the matter can be satisfactorily answered upon official information."

Speaking of the Chilian situation, Mr. Blount said:

"There is nothing to do until the correspondence is sent to congress. While I do not know definitely I am of opinion that it is perhaps best that the correspondence is not sent in until it is complete. I do not believe there will be any declaration of war. Certainly this house will not authorize hostilities without sufficient cause being shown. The correspondence will, without doubt, be sent to congress, and should be, as the country has a right to know its contents."

AS BAD AS WARFARE.

British Fleet Sadly Knocked Out by Grip.

Hardly a Craft in the Navy That Has Not Got a Large Hospital List Caused by the Disease.

London, Jan. 11.—Dispatches from Malta say that the British fleet at that place is in a state of weakness which might be compared with that of a fleet having passed through a severe engagement with an enemy.

The flagship, H. M. S. Victoria, 15 guns, 10,470 tons, 14,000 horse-power, has 60 men in the hospital, suffering from influenza; the Amphion, 10 guns, 4,300 tons, 5,500 horse-power, has 39 men down with the same disease; the Inflexible, 12 guns, 11,880 tons, 8,010 horse-power, has 40 men under treatment; the Trafalgar, 10 guns, 11,940 tons, 12,000 horse-power, the flagship of Rear Admiral Lord Walter T. Kerr, has 39 men in the surgeon's hands, and the crack torpedo ram, Polyphemus, 2,640 guns, 5,520 horse-power, has a third of her crew sick with the grippe.

Finally, the Dreadnaught, 4 guns, 10,820 tons, 8,210 horse-power, is coming back from Salonica with half her crew suffering more or less from the prevailing epidemic.

Of course, these figures give only a slight idea of the spread of the disease in the British Mediterranean fleet, for the Agamemnon, the Australia, the Benbow, the Colossus, the Edinburgh, the Temerairs, and the Undaunted (Lord Charles Beresford's ship), the battleships in those waters have had many influenza sufferers among their crews.

The above list does not include the many cruisers and gunboats of the British Mediterranean fleet whose crews have not escaped the grippe.

This causes people to remark if there is any serious troubles in the Mediterranean, the British sailors will have to go into action in a slightly demoralized condition.

CRISP'S ONE DEFEAT.

Speaker Crisp was never defeated for office but once in his life. It was the first race he ever made, and he struggled hard to win. It was shortly after the war, when he had but recently been admitted to the bar. He had hung his shingle out in Ellaville, Schley county, Ga. Down there there is a county official known as the ordinary. In some respects it is an extraordinary office. The incumbent records deeds and mortgages, registers wills, hears lunacy cases and commits lunatics to the asylum, issues marriage licenses and does a lot of other things. This was the office which first attracted Mr. Crisp's ambition. It is a saying in Georgia that when a man is elected ordinary he never gets any higher. It is a fee office and one of the fat things local politics offers down there. That is the reason that when a man gets it he seldom gets any higher—he doesn't want to get any higher. The people of Schley county say that if Crisp had been elected ordinary by them he would still be pegging away in the office, and would never have been a congressman, much less speaker. His defeat was its fortune.

GAS IN A CHURCH.

Several Persons Badly Injured at Tiffin.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 11.—While services were being held in Grace Reformed church Sunday morning a young lady suddenly fainted. She was carried out, and when she reached the open air her body became stiff. Her face was pale and she had the appearance of a dead person.

A few seconds after she was taken out 14 other members of the congregation fainted and were carried to the parsonage adjacent to the church. The cold air had the same effect on them as it had on the young lady who first overcome. Physicians were immediately summoned and the sufferers were restored to consciousness with great difficulty.

It is supposed that all will recover. The physicians say that the people were asphyxiated by natural gas escaping from a flue into the church.

The entire congregation was affected and many are still suffering. Dr. Hilschman, pastor of the church, is unable to preach this evening and is completely prostrated from the effects of the gas.

PLACED IN THEIR GRAVES.

Thirty-Eight Funerals Held Yesterday.

Victims of the McAllister Mine Disaster Buried—Seventy-Five Persons Were Killed or Will Die.

McAllister, I. T., Jan. 11.—Sunday was a day of mourning at Krebs, the scene of the recent mining disaster in which so many men lost their lives.

The funerals of the most of the victims whose bodies have been recovered were held. There was no religious services excepting in a few cases, and the only ceremony observed in connection with the funerals was that of secret organizations of which most of the victims were members.

Fifteen of the dead bodies were buried Saturday. All the coffins available then were used, and the other burials were delayed until Sunday, when coffins were received by express from the nearest towns in the neighborhood. The caskets were of the simplest plain varieties and were furnished by the mining company.

There was only one hearse in the town of Krebs, so that it was necessary to use every sort of vehicle to convey the bodies to the cemetery. Ordinary lumber wagons were the greatest in number, and in some cases dumping carts from the mines were brought into requisition.

The funerals took place at 10 o'clock, 37 bodies being placed under the ground. The graves of the identified dead were marked by plain headstones of wood, with the names and ages of the victims printed upon them. The unidentified were placed in graves by numbers. Their clothes found upon them and the contents of their pockets were retained by the mining officials, and are all marked with numbers corresponding to the respective numbers of the graves, for the purpose of future identification.

Death added three more victims to the list of killed, making the total 38. A canvass among physicians attending the injured discloses the fact that 17 injured are likely to die within the next 24 hours. Rescuing parties discontinued work at noon, satisfied there are no more bodies in the debris, and none confined within the chambers of the mine.

YELLOW JACK ON BOARD.

Four Deaths on a Steamer at Quarantine.

The Moorish Prince Held for Disinfection After a Sad and Dreary Voyage From South America.

New York, Jan. 11.—Capt. Lawson, of the British steamer Moorish Prince, which arrived at quarantine early Sunday morning reports that six members of the steamer's crew had been sick with yellow fever, four of whom died.

The steamer arrived at Santos November 11, and remained there until the 25th of the same month, when she sailed for Rio Janiero. A fireman was stricken with the fever on the day before sailing for Rio Janiero. He was sent ashore to the hospital.

The steamer entered the harbor of Rio Janeiro November 26. The same day the chief mate, John Hughes, was taken to the hospital, where he died November 30. He was 41 years of age, and a native of Bangor, Me.

At the same time Hughes was taken sick Willy Tachn, aged 20, a seaman, German, was also stricken with the dread disease and transferred with the mate to to the hospital. November 28 the second engineer, George Cairncross, aged 35, of Dundee, Scotland, was the next one attacked. He died December 2.

The third engineer, Robert Richardson, aged 37, of England, was taken sick on December 2 and died the next day, before he could be removed from the steamer to the hospital at Rio Janiero. December 5 the engineer's steward was also taken sick. He was transferred to the hospital, and the steamer sailed for New York the next day, touching at St. Lucia December 30. No other cases have occurred. The steamer is detained at quarantine for disinfection.

WILL FIGHT FOR GARZA.

The Poor of Mexico Flock to His Support.

They Are Willing to Die Under His Banner.

Alarming Reports of Internal Warfare Comes From Chihuahua, Where Fighting Has Commenced.

San Antonia, Tex., Jan. 11.—The startling information was brought here by J. C. Godfrey, from Piedras Negras, Mexico, that there is a general uprising in the states of Durango, Chihuahua, Coahuila, and Sonora, and that the malcontents are well organized and will flock to the standard of Garza.

It states that in parts of Chihuahua the poorer classes have already revolted and are marching in bands of from 300 to 400 across the country committing depredations. The objective point of these forces is said to be Monterey.

The governor of Chihuahua has appealed to President Diaz for more troops to put down the rebellion. Garza's revolution in this section has furnished no startling news for several days, but this is no indication that the doughty leader has abandoned his plans, or that the support of his movement by the people along the border is waning.

While the troops have succeeded in temporarily upsetting his plans for organizing his army, there is no room to doubt that Garza will remain in the field. His men are acquainted with every foot of the country, are inured to the hardships of hunger and thirst, and are at home in the saddle.

When the troops have succeeded in running on to the revolutionists the latter have scattered, only to meet at some point, probably one hundred miles distant. When it is taken into consideration that this country is sparsely settled and that water can be found only at distances of from twenty to thirty miles apart, some idea can be gained of the difficulties which have confronted the troops. While unable to capture Garza, their ceaseless vigilance has frustrated his plans of organization and necessitated the shifting of the enterprise to other quarters.

The officer whose command is now regarded in the most critical situation is Captain George Chase, who was to have reached the Palito Blanco ranch, seventeen miles southeast of San Diego, at which place the Mexican authorities and General Lorenzo Garcia, particularly, claims that Garza has his headquarters. Captain Chase has instructions to make a thorough search of the ranch, and the result of his expedition is awaited with much interest and no little anxiety at department headquarters here.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 11.—A special from Deming, N. M., says: Couriers from Ascension, in the state of Chihuahua, one hundred miles south report a terrible uprising there Thursday. For some time bad feeling has existed between the adherents of the church and the supporters of the Diaz government.

Affairs reached a crisis Thursday when the election of the president of the town was held. Rafael Anchela, who had twice held the office, was re-elected by a few votes. Anchela was distasteful to the opposition on account of his efforts to inaugurate reform, and threats were openly made against his life.

A mob of over 100 men suddenly surrounded the city building and opened fire. Anchela and his secretary, N. Devalas, were instantly killed. The mob took possession of the town after a hard fight with the friends of Anchela.

During the battle three revolutionists were killed and many on both sides fatally wounded. Franco Sanzo, one of the leaders of the mob, was among the killed. The impression prevails that this is a movement in support of Garza. The strength of the insurgents is reported at eighty armed men. Troops are ordered to the point of the outbreak. In the meantime the town is in possession of the mob and further bloodshed is expected.

NORTON AND DOWLING.

Their Annual Reports in the Governor's Hands.

The Car Stove, a Relic of the Past, Should be Discarded—Work of the Oil Inspector for the Year.

Columbus, O., Jan. 11.—(Special)—Railroad Commissioner Norton has submitted his annual report.

The commissioner asks for more power not only to make examinations, but to issue orders when necessary and discusses the consolidation of railroads, rates, scalping, transportation and the care and safety of stations.

He condemns the Union depot in this city as extremely unsafe for passengers. He recommends that all trains transporting passengers with contagious or infectious diseases be placarded so that all other passengers may know their danger.

Four hundred and fifty deaths have been reported to him and the majority have been killed while trespassing, but the number reported is at least one-fourth short of the number killed last year. Railroad companies comply with the provisions of the law requiring them to report deaths, only when people are killed by reason of their own negligence.

Recommendations for the block signal system, air brakes and automatic couplers are made. He also calls attention to the necessity of having frogs and guard rails well blocked. The commissioner has approved 21 interlocking switches. He recommends the substitution of steam or hot water for car heating. He says the stove should be abolished. He recommends gas for train lighting.

Oil Inspector Joseph H. Dowling submitted his annual report to the governor. The first exhibit in his report shows how many barrels of illuminating oil he and his 25 deputies have inspected. The number is 481,075 and the fees collected amount to $24,485.37. Of this business Cleveland furnished 140,447 barrels, for which fees amounting to $7,030.45 were collected, or more than one-fourth of the total. The table showing where the oil was manufactured gives Cleveland 333,150 barrels, of which 65 were rejected by the inspector. In all 209 barrels were found unfit for use. The number of barrels inspected in 1890 was 443,217, showing an increase in 1891 of 37,149 barrels.

Inspector Dowling says: "I take pride in saying that the freedom from accidents generally caused by coal oil can be credited to our beneficent law enacted to regulate the sale of illuminating oil, and to my deputies in requiring a strict compliance with its provisions. Dealers generally have cheerfully complied with the law."

QUEEN TO OPEN PARLIAMENT.

I announced last week that the queen will open parliament in person on Tuesday, the 9th of February. Some journals have thought fit to describe my statement as "conjectural." The fact is that the queen informed Lord Salisbury of her intention to open parliament nearly a month ago, and an unusually late day for the ceremony was fixed expressly to suit her majesty's convenience. The arrangements on the occasion are to be precisely the same in every respect as they were in 1886. The queen will not stay at Buckingham palace for more than two nights. —London World.

INDIAN DAYS AND TROUBLES

Discovery and Settlement of North America.

French and English in the West—Father Marquette—Lasalle's Explorations—The Tragic Fate of His Colony—D'Iberville.

(By Dr H. Scott.)

It was about midnight of the 12th of October, 1492, when Christopher Columbus first saw a light on one of the West India islands. Four years later the main continent was discovered by Sebastian Cabot, an English navigator. The Spanish first landed on the coast of Florida, which name they gave to the land because of the rich luxuriance of beautiful flowers everywhere found. Cabot subsequently cruised along the southern and eastern coasts of the continent as far as the mouth of the St. Lawrence, only occasionally coming in sight of land, but, so far as known, not landing.

The French first discovered Canada and formed settlements there. They also first discovered the mouth of the Mississippi. The Dutch were the first to discover the Hudson and Delaware rivers, where they landed and formed colonies, giving to the country the name of New Holland. There seems to have been an understanding arrived at by the governments of Europe, that any portion of the new world discovered and taken possession of should belong by right of discovery to the country from which the convoy sailed. This seems afterward to have been of difficult adjustment, as metes and bounds could neither be named nor located in so vast an unknown country.

The English would insist on the possession of the whole country stretching from the St. Lawrence to Florida, but to what western boundary could not be definitely defined. The French, by the same compact, claimed all the country lying between the northern lakes and the mouth of the Mississippi and west to the Pacific coast.

It was readily seen, therefore, whence arose the subsequent troubles that harrassed the frontiers during the early history.

French and English in the West.

The French Catholics, at a very early day, undertook missionary work among the western tribes of Indians, planting schools and seeking to imbue them with a love for the Christian religion. Their first and principal establishment was situated near the outlet of Lake Superior, and was named St. Mary's.

The English also early established colonies and trading posts among the different tribes, and thus began the rivalry of making friends and allies of these uncivilized people, so that in the wars that followed some of the tribes espoused the cause of the English and others joined themselves with the French, thus giving origin to the terms "French Indians" and "English Indians."

For feuds and wars there were two principal causes. The fur and peltry traffic with the Indians was becoming the source of large profits to the white race on the one hand, and hence the rivalries that speedily sprung up. On the other hand, the undisputed right of possession under the supposed validity of the original compact, based on the priority of discovery. In the subsequent struggles it became necessary to the parties respectively to secure the friendship of the tribes, and their co-operation as far as possible, to form with them fraternal leagues and fighting relations. One of the fearful consequences of these leagues was the massacre of pioneer settlers along the frontiers.

There is not on the pages of civilized history a darker or more damning record than that which embodies the history of the relations of the English and French with the Indians during the border wars of the early west. This embraces the second half of the last century, and the beginning of the present.

There never have been a people on earth who so much deserved the execrations of the civilized world as the French and English officers who offered and paid for butchering and scalping frontier white settlers during the early times of the west. They first put firearms into the hands of theIndians, and instructed them in their use, and then offered to pay them for settlers' scalps.

Father Marquette.

James Marquette was a French Catholic priest, and beyond doubt the first white man who ever penetrated the great Mississippi valley. He was in every respect a very remarkable man. He was highly educated, and was an earnest Christian. On the 10th of June, 1673, he set out from Fox river, Canada, on his hazardous expedition. His escort consisted of a French gentleman, five Canadians and two Indian guides; nine in all. To convey his stores and implements he had two birch canoes, which were carried on the shoulders of the men across the land. He expected to rely for subsistence entirely on the forests and on the inhabitants of the water. In their little barks they descended the Wisconsin river to its junction with the Mississippi, and down the latter to the mouth of the Arkansas, whence they returned by the Illinois, and finally reached Green Bay in safety, soon after which Father Marquette died.

During the expedition he visited several Indian towns in the vicinity of the rivers he navigated. Without a guide, or any geographical knowledge of the country whatever, he traced the villages out by following the beaten paths that led out from the banks of the streams. In this vast wilderness, many hundreds of miles away from the advanced posts of civilization, and where the foot of the white man had never trod before, this brave priest approached the children of the forest with confidence, and was received by them in the most cordial manner. He smoked with them the pipe of peace, and parted with them in mutual pledges of continued friendship. He recommended to them the Christian religion; and told them the French people would always be their friends. This visit, no doubt, laid the foundation for the amicable relations that afterwards existed between many of the tribes and the French nation.

Lasalle.

Five years later another adventurer, also a Frenchman, by the name of Lasalle, undertook the exploration of the Mississippi valley, if it be proper to call that a valley which extends through many thousands of miles, and receives many broad rivers into its majestic bosom; and which also drains vast stretches of country for thousands of miles. Lasalle descended the Mississippi, it was said, as far as its mouth.

This explorer was a citizen of France, and sailed from there in June, 1678, under the patronage of King Louis, having been fitted out with a superb ship for the voyage. After arriving in Canada he built a ship for navigating the lakes, which is said to have been the first craft larger than a birch canoe that was ever launched on those waters. His special object in building the vessel was to enter extensively into the fur trade with the Indians, having been promised by the king the monopoly of that business, as a reward for his services as an explorer.

His first trip was to Mackinaw, where he expended his all in the purchase of an immense cargo of skins of fur, which would have yielded him a fortune had his enterprise ended successfully; but the vessel, with its entire cargo, was lost.

2 Scott.

Lasalle does not seem to have broken down under his losses, but at once set about making arrangements for exploring the rivers of the south and west. A story is told of him which goes to show how little he knew of the geography of the new world; or rather how little was known at that time.

It is related of him that he actually sent a boat up the Mississippi with the view of discovering a passage to China. This envoy, under the leadership of one Hennepin, a priest, after reaching the falls of St. Anthony, was taken prisoner by the Indians and held three months, during which time the prisoners were treated hospitably. They were released, and permitted to return to their friends in Canada.

Lasalle, with most of his men, remained on the Illinois river, hoping to redeem his misfortunes by the services he hoped to render to the king in bringing about an attachment of the whole country to the government of France.

He began the erection of a fort on the Illinois river, a little above the present city of Peoria, and named it Creveceur—the broken-hearted. He raised the French flag on the soil of Texas; and gave the name Louisiana to that part of the country.

Subsequently he returned to Quebec; and thence to France, where he fitted out a colony and planted it successfully in Texas. The colony met with a sad end in some way never known to history. All that is known, is, that Lasalle and a few of his men finding themselves threatened with hopeless famine, formed the desperate resolve of attempting to make their way through the forests to Canada, a distance of over two thousand miles, beset by Indians the whole distance, and that on the way the men mutinied and murdered him.

Not long after this tragic termination of Lasalle's enterprise, another under the command of D'Iberville sailed from France. Arriving at the mouth of the Mississippi he sailed up its waters several hundred miles, planting colonies at several points.

About this time the English, whose possessions lay east of the Alleghanies, began to regard the advance of the French in the light of encroachment. The latter set up in their justification priority of discovery and occupancy; while the former claimed that the right issued to them under the law of nations, and claimed the regions bordering on the sea coasts by them discovered and taken possession of, and extending across the continent; while both parties consented that the rights of the Indians, in actual possession, were to be respected; and thus matters stood until the beginning of Indians wars.

Jealousies and the fur trade brought on these wars and bloody frontier tragedies which followed. But the fur and peltry trade was the chief and primary cause, because there were fortunes in it; and both parties knew that the wild men had little conception of the value, and would part with their peltries for trifles—gewgaws.

THE NEW LANGUAGE.

Volapuk as It Is Written at the Cultured Hub.

Bostonians are actually talking Volapuk, says the Boston Globe.

The ladies are in love with it.

The gentlemen think it not only peculiar, but useful.

Six hundred people in this city can now read and write this universal language, and ere long as many can converse in the same, be it with Americans or foreigners.

Saturday at the rooms of the society on Boylston street there was held the third of a series of weekly meetings, and nothing but Volapuk was spoken. The devotees will keep it up in the same strain until they become proficient. Then they will be ready to greet the many foreigners who come to this country in '93 to attend the Columbian exposition.

The initiative in this movement was taken by the Chicago Volapuk club in November, and Boston quickly took the cue.

Mr. Albert Post, a philologist of many attainments, who is conversant with 13 languages and speaks six fluently, is at the head of the Volapukists of the Hub. He gives instruction at these Saturday conversational meetings at the evening high school and at the People's church.

Here is a poem written in both English and Volapuk:

In flolatim, ven del golom
When day is dawning in the spring
E tofs nidoms as yofadlens,
And dewdrops gleam like tears of joy,
Ven lut vapol galo tonom
When fragrant zephyrs gayly ring
Me bods yubot ed i biens,
With birds and bees in glad employ,
Jinos das nog sinik menad
It seems the race of sin and vice
Sevom bosi de vonagad—
Knew something still of paradise—
In flolatim.
In rosy spring.

Whence originated this strange language and whither has it spread?

Only a dozen years ago a German clergyman of great linguistic learning published a grammar and a dictionary of an artificial language which he offered full-fledged to the world, and claimed that his language supplied a long-expressed need.

The world laughed.

It had seen the futility of so many similar attempts, which men of greater pretension had supported by their names, that it repudiated the production of John Martin Schleyer, and wagged its head as it sneeringly predicted that he and his Volapuk would soon pass into oblivion.

And Volapuk took a nap.

But it awoke within two years.

It was made the basis of correspondence. It was applied to commercial use, to translations of literature of every sort, romance, history, drama, ethics, science and poetry.

Journals were founded with Volapuk as the medium of thought and in less than 10 years since its first acceptance Volapuk has acquired 47 periodicals, a bibliography of over 1,200 volumes and a numerical constituency of several million people distributed throughout every civilized country.

Clubs for study and propogation of the language dot the map of the world. Lectures on the language have been established in the oldest universities.

Schools place it in their curriculum. Men like Max Muller and Alexander John Ellis have accorded it their approval. The queen of Italy has adopted it and had her children learn it. It has taken its place among the languages of the world, tributary to them all, yet neither wishing or attempting to interfere with any of them.

Herein is the important fact concerning Volapuk; it does not offer to overthrow any language and take its place. It simply shows itself a convenient means of communication between those whose native languages are reciprocally unknown and inconvenient of attainment.

Learned easily in one-tenth of the time required for mastery of the simplest natural language, it enables the Frenchman to hold direct communication with the Japanese, each nation to be in oral or written understanding with each other.

The literature of natural language goes on undisturbed, and will continue so to do. Volapuk merely supplements all this, enables a writer by the use of one, in lieu of many languages, to reach a constituency world-embracing.

A QUEER LITTLE CRAB.

Another curious Japanese crab is the little Dorippe, which comes from the Inland sea of Japan, and has a perfect human face modeled on the back of his little inch-long shell. The Dorippe's eyes, and the uneven edge of the shell between them, look like tufts of hair at the top of a narrow forehead. There are lumps resembling eyelids, which slant upward as do those of the Japanese, and other parts of the shell look like full and high cheek-bones. Below a ridge which might be called the nose two claws spread out at either side, and may be likened to the fierce, bristling mustaches which are fastened to the helmet of Japanese armor. This plainly marked face on the crab's shell naturally gave rise to many stories and legends. At one place in the Inland sea, centuries ago, an army of the Taira clan was overtaken and driven into the sea by their enemies. At certain times of the year the Dorippes come up on the beach and the rocks by thousands. Then the fishermen and villagers say with fear, "The Samurai have come again." They believe that the souls of the dead warriors, or Samurai, live in the Dorippes, and that they gather in great numbers at the scene of their defeat whenever the same day comes round in later years.

The face on the Dorippe's back is like a swollen and mottled one. The eyelids seem closed, as if in a sleep or stupor, while its mouth quite carries out the other common story, that all the old topers are turned into these crabs and must keep that form as a punishment for some long time. The swollen heavy faces may quite as well be those of bleary old topers as of warriors who met death by drowning; so that one who notices the resemblance of the shell to a queer Japanese face may think there is good reason for either story as to why the Dorippe's shell is so strangely marked.—January St. Nicholas.

A DELAYED CAR.

Five or six men and three or four women stood on a corner waiting for a horse car. One of the women was the last to arrive and she rushed up breathlessly, saying to one of the other women, whom she chanced to know:

"My! I was so afraid I'd miss the next car. I've been fairly racing for six blocks."

"When's it supposed to get along here?" asked another man.

"It's about time the car was here," said one of the men, testily.

"It's due at ten minutes after, but no one ever expects it to get here on time."

"Well, I think it's high time it was here now."

"Oh, I do hope it won't be late, for I have an engagement at halfpast," said a woman, nervously.

"Well it's high time it was here," said one of the men.

"It's past time," said another, closing his watch with a snap.

"It won't be here for a good half hour yet, you may be sure of that," said a portly old man, stepping briskly around, thumping the sidewalk with his cane.

"So tiresome waiting for these cars," said a woman, plaintively.

"And they're always late when one is in a hurry," replied another woman in a tone of deep dejection.

"Always! I never knew it to fail in my life."

"I tell you, gentlemen, this thing's getting to be a perfect outrage!" blustered the old gentleman. "These cars don't pretend to run on time."

No; and if one makes complaint at headquarters no notice is taken of it."

"Not a bit. We've the poorest service on this line of any line in the city."

"That's a fact, and I'm in for doing something about it. I tell you it's time for the citizens of this place to made the street railway company feel that we have some rights!"

"That' it! that's it" cried the portly old man gleefully, and yet savagely whacking the pavement with his cane, as if it were the "Company."

"I tell you people won't stand this much longer. This thing of having to wait from twenty to forty minutes for every car isn't to be put up with."

"That's what it isn't. We've stood it long enough. We've just got to raise in our might and—"

"Ah there comes the car," shrieked out a woman, rushing madly out into the street although the car was three blocks distant...

"At last!" said the old man scornfully.

"Time it was here," growled out a man who looked like a preacher.

"I'm going to complain about this."

"It 'll do no earthly good."

"I'm so tired waiting," said a woman who had stood patiently and calmly on her feet for an hour and a half that afternoon matching a piece of velvet.

Every man said something ugly and threatening or murderous to the conductor, and every woman looked daggers at him while getting on the car.

And I give you my word of honor as a gentleman and a christian, and as the father of a family, that the car was just one minute and a half late!—Smith, Grave & Co. Monthly.

SECRETARY FOSTER'S DILEMMA.

It would be difficult to put a secretary of the treasury in a more trying position than that in which Mr. Foster finds himself. He cannot well keep up this holding back of appropriations without raising a storm about his ears from the government's creditors, and he surely cannot increase the revenues. He has, moreover, no surplus available in the treasury. His entire cash balance, as reported at the end of the month, was only $34,500,000, and of this amount over $14,000,000 is in small coin and wholly unavailable, and some $15,400,000 is in the national bank depositaries as a working balance, which has rarely been reduced much below that figure. There is a bare possibility that the foreign manufacturers will favor him at the expense of the home market by sending over more of their customs-taxed goods in the next six months, and so swell the receipts, but this does not seem probable to a degree that will materially affect the situation.

Either, then, the government must continue simply to refuse to pay its dues to an extent sufficient to keep the expenditures within the income, or congress must be asked to provide more revenue. This would be an admission of the plundering extravagance of the last congress which the administration may hardly be expected to make until every means of escape has been exhausted. It is not Mr. Foster's personal affair, however. The blame for bringing the treasury into this bankrupt condition rests upon the administration and the majority of the last congress, and it will put a heavy handicap on that party in the presidential election about to follow.—Springfield Republican.

The preparations now in progress for the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, where all the world will be able to compare the results of mechanical skill, render this a fit season for interviewing the supremacy of America in many branches of applied mechanics. This is the subject of a series of illustrated papers by Prof. Coleman Sellers in The Engineering Magazine, the second of which appears in the January number. In this paper he points out the effect of the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, which was in the nature of a great revelation to the world of the achievements of American inventors. There is reason to believe, from what Prof. Sellers has recorded of recent progress, that the Chicago fair will be in the nature of a still greater surprise to the outside world.

Dr. Ottman will visit Toledo, Saturday, Jan. 30.

Consultation and Examination Free and Strictly Confidential in the Private Parlor of the Burnett House from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., one day only.

The Doctors describe the different diseases better than the sick can themselves. It is a wonderful gift for any one to possess. Their diagnostic powers have created wonders throughout the country.

The France Medical and Surgical Institute of Columbus, Ohio, is the only Medical Institute in the State Incorporated with a Capital of $300,000.00.

FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE,

38 & 40 W. Gay St., one block N. of State House, Columbus, O. Incorporated, 1886. Capital, $300,000.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, of New York, the well known and successful Specialists in Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear, on account of their large practice in Ohio, have established the FRANCE MEDICAL INSTITUTE, where all forms of Chronic, Nervous and Private Diseases will be successfully treated on the most Scientific principles. They are ably assisted by a full corps of eminent Physicians and Surgeons, each one being a well known specialist in his profession

CANCER positively cured without pain or use of the knife, by a new method.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—DR. FRANCE, after years of experience, has discovered the greatest cure known for all diseases peculiar to the sex. Female diseases positively cured by the new remedy, OLIVE BLOSSOM. The cure is effected by home treatment. Entirely harmless and easily applied. Consultation Free and Strictly Confidential. Correspondence promptly answered.

YOUNG MEN—Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with confidence.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, after years of experience, have discovered the greatest cure known for weakness in the back and limbs, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, langnor, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, timidity, trembling, dimness of sight, or giddiness, diseases of the head, throat, nose, or skin, affections of the liver, lungs, stomach, or bowels—those terrible disorders arising from the solitary vice of youth—and secret practices, blighting their most radiant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage impossible. Take one candid thought before it is too late. A week or month may place your case beyond the reach of hope. Our method of treatment will speedily and permanently cure the most obstinate case, and absolutely restore perfect manhood.

TO MIDDLE-AGED MEN.—There are many from the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight burning or smarting sensation, weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examination of the urinary deposits, a ropy sediment will be found, or the color will be a thin or milkish hue. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is a second stage of seminal weakness. We will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—We have a special department, thoroughly organized, and devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases of women. Every case consulting our specialists, whether by letter or in person, is given the most careful and considerate attention. Important cases, and we get few which have not baffled the skill of all the home physicians) have the benefit of a full council of skilled specialists. In treatment of diseases peculiar to females, our success has been marked, over two-thirds of our patients being ladies, old, young, married, single, rich and poor. Our method is entirely free from objectionable features of the general practitioner, namely, "Local treatment." We seldom find it necessary. We prepare remedies, constitutional and local, as the case demands, and instruct ladies how to treat themselves.

MARRIAGE.—Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualification, speedily restored.

PRIVATE DISEASES.—Blood Poison, Venereal Taint, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Emissions, Loss of Sexual Power, Weakness of Sexual Organs, Want of Desire in Male or Female, whether from imprudent habits of youth or sexual habits of mature years, or any cause that debilitates the sexual functions, speedily and permanently cured. Consultation free and strictly confidential. Absolute cures guaranteed. Medicines sent free from observation to all parts of the United States.

EPILEPSY, OR FITS—Positively cured by a new and never-failing method. Testimonials furnished.

FREE EXAMINATION OF THE URINE.—Each person applying for medical treatment should send or bring from 2 to 4 ounces of urine (that passed first in the morning preferred), which will receive a careful chemical and microscopical examination, and if requested a written analysis will be given.

Persons ruined in health by unlearned pretenders, who keep trifling with them month after month, giving poisonous and injurious compounds, should apply immediately. Delays are dangerous.

WONDERFUL CURES Perfected in old cases which have been neglected or unskillfully treated. No experiments or failures. Parties treated by mail or express, but where possible, personal consultation is preferred. Curable cases guaranteed. No risks incurred.

Cases and correspondence confidential. Treatment sent C. O. D. to any part of U. S. List of 130 questions free. Address, with postage, DR. FRANCE, Nos. 38 and 40 W. Gay St., Columbus, O.

They are defective only in the milling, one edge apparently having been filed a little more than the opposite.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Rosabel Morrison in the Danger Signal—Poor Jonathan.

Miss Rosabel Morrison, as the star in Henry C. DeMille's play the Danger Signal, will be the attraction at the People's all this week. The author is well known, having written many successes, such as The Wife, Charity Ball, Men and Women, Lord Chumley, etc., therefore comment on his work is unnecessary.

The costly stage settings have won the admiration of all those who have witnessed this most elaborate production, and the constant and ever-varying chain of incidents which characterize this dramatic creation, holds the attention of the audience from the first to the fall of the curtain, the telling lines of the play and thrilling situations are greeted with plaudits at each presentation. The play as entire has won a hearty indorsement from the press and public.

Many novel stage effects are introduced, notably a monster locomotive under a full headway of steam, and a rotary cyclone snow plow in active operation. The sensational scenes in the Danger Signal are not introduced merely for effect, but have a direct, lucid and comprehensive connection with the plot. Miss Morrison will have a good company to support her and give the play a comprehensive rendition.

Poor Jonathan.

Conreid's Comic Opera company will be the attraction at the Wheeler opera house to-night, presenting, for the first time in Toledo, the great success of last season at the New York Casino, Poor Jonathan.

The music is from the pen of Carl Millocker, who gave to the musical world the scores of The Beggar Student, The Black Hussar, and many other notable successes.

The story of the opera deals with the vicissitudes of an American millionaire who, tiring of the responsibilities of his wealth, turns his entire property over to his cook.

The music abounds in the lively dance music characteristic of the Viennese composer.

SKIN DISEASES.

What spectacle is more disgusting than that of a man or woman with a skin disease which shows itself in pimples or blotches on the hands, arms, face and neck? It is simply impure blood. See what Brandeth's Pill's did for a chronic case:

George Chapman, Pincening, Mich., says:

"For four years I was in the Mounted Infantry in the U. S. army, residing during that time principally in Texas. Almost all of that time I had a chronic skin disease, characterized by an eruption over the entire surface of my legs and thighs, arms and chest. The doctors termed it eczema. I had given up all hopes of ever being cured, when Brandreth's Pills were recommended to me. I concluded to try them, and I have thanked God daily since then that I did so. I used them for about three months, and by that time was completely cured, and have never had any trouble since."

DEAD IN PARIS.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 11.—Cable advices were received in the city to-day of the sudden and unexpected death in Paris of Miss Josephine Florence Medill, the youngest daughter of Joseph Medill, editor of the Tribune. Miss Medill's illness had been almost trifling. Last month she had an attack of the grip or influenza, and had, it was thought, fully recovered. Last Friday she was well enough for a drive; but the exposure induced a relapse, and she gradually succumbed to a fatal congestion of the lungs.

The fire is in a section which has not been worked since the accident referred to. An attempt will be made to quench the fire through the old shaft where the bodies of the dead men were brought out.
